AUSTRIA AND HUNGARY BACK ITALY

OPPOSITION TO SANCTIONS LACK OF UNITY NO IMPEDIMENT MAJOR POWERS AGREED UPON POLICY

Geneva, Oct. 9.
 The refusal of the Austrian and Hungarian Governments to associate themselves with the application of sanctions by the League against Italy, makes a small gap in the unity of the Powers at Geneva, and may influence the attitude of Switzerland and Yugoslavia, but even if Austria maintains this attitude, which is doubtful, it will not materially affect the general position.
 It is unlikely that there will be any other definite dissensions besides Austria's and Hungary's.
 It is understood that Baron Aloisi's speech tomorrow, on Italy's behalf, will be of a vigorous character. Apparently the Italians are not going to consider their position in the League affected by the vote of the Council or the Assembly.

The Italians have shown considerable satisfaction at the turn of events in the Assembly and are most elated at the sympathetic speeches delivered by the Austrian and Hungarian delegates.
SANCTIONS PROGRESS
 But in spite of the opposition in the Assembly, the League is moving towards the application of sanctions. It is understood the Committee of Co-Ordination will be elected by the Council, which will also decide upon the date for the enforcement of sanctions, probably at a special meeting next week.
 The Co-ordinating Committee will consist of all members of the Council except Italy and eleven members from the Assembly.
 —Reuter.
 The details of the Assembly meeting follow:

TENSE ATMOSPHERE
 Geneva, 6 p.m.
 In the presence of a crowded chamber and in a tensely expectant atmosphere, Dr. Edouard Benes, President of the Assembly, opened the fateful meeting.
 He explained, firstly, the reasons for the determination of the Assembly to remain in session instead of adjourning a week ago. Two motives prompted him to convene the Assembly: the grave turn in the situation owing to the development of military operations in East Africa and the fact that the Council had reached a point where collaboration with the Assembly was essential.—Reuter.

BEFORE THE SESSION
 Geneva, 5.25 p.m.
 When Dr. Benes, President of the League of Nations Assembly, opened the meeting he will submit the report of the Committee of Six and members will be informed that silence registers assent and acquiescence in the report, equivalent to an undertaking to support the execution of Article Sixteen.
 This is likely to be the sequel to the protest made by Baron Aloisi, Italy's chief delegate, as to procedure.
 M. Pierre Laval, Prime Minister of France, and Mr. Anthony Eden, the British Minister for League Affairs, are also expected to make statements to the meeting.

SWISS HESITANT
 The following have been nominated to comprise the co-ordinating committee on sanctions:
 Delegates from South Africa, Persia, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Australia, Sweden, Belgium, Venezuela, Holland and Switzerland. The last named country made the reservation.

FRANCO-BRITISH ACCORD AGREEMENT UPON SANCTIONS PROVOCATION AVOIDED

Geneva, Oct. 9.
 French circles here declare that complete agreement has been reached between the French and British experts on the plan of sanctions against Italy.
 The basis of the sanctions will be a maximum degree of efficiency and a minimum degree of provocation.
 It is suggested that financial sanctions should be tightened up, the arms embargo on Ethiopia raised, and all raw material and key products for the manufacture of munitions and arms should be prevented from reaching Italy. Further, general trade with Italy will be limited by much more strict and reduced systems of quotas.—Reuter.

EARLIER REPORTS
 Geneva, Oct. 9.
 Early this afternoon it was announced that so far British and French experts have been unable to reconcile their views on measures to be adopted against Italy under Article XVI.
 British quarters officially declare that the preliminary talks are proceeding satisfactorily, however, on the lines of an approach. The question of League measures graduating in severity has not yet arisen.—Reuter.

CABINET MEETS
 London, Oct. 9.
 At the weekly meeting of the Cabinet to-day there was a full attendance of Ministers, except for the Minister of League Affairs, Mr. Eden, who is at Geneva. As at present arranged, Parliament reassembles in three weeks, and Ministers, apart from hearing reports on the international situation, were confronted with the usual heavy agenda before the opening of the new session. The Cabinet therefore was unable to conclude its business at to-day's meeting and adjourned. A meeting will be held next Tuesday.
 It is understood that no decision was taken to ask for the reassembly of Parliament earlier than October 29. It is possible, however, that the Government will ask for an earlier meeting if developments at Geneva should make it desirable.—British Wireless.

ETHIOPIA CENSORING WAR NEWS FOREIGN OFFICERS' INFLUENCE SEEN ITALY TO PRESS ATTACKS

(Special to "Telegraph")
 Addis Ababa, Oct. 9.
 No Government communiques were issued to-day regarding the situation on the three fighting fronts, which is regarded as an indication that the Belgian officers who are in virtual control of the Ethiopian armies have enforced a censorship.
 Military reports explain that telegraphic and telephonic communications have broken down or been destroyed.
 News of the recapture of Adowa and Adigrat is declared to be without foundation, but it is admitted that there have been skirmishes, which are still proceeding, in the neighbourhood of these two towns.
 Italian aeroplanes engaged in a reconnaissance flight over Awash, but the report that Harar was bombed has proved unfounded.—Reuter.

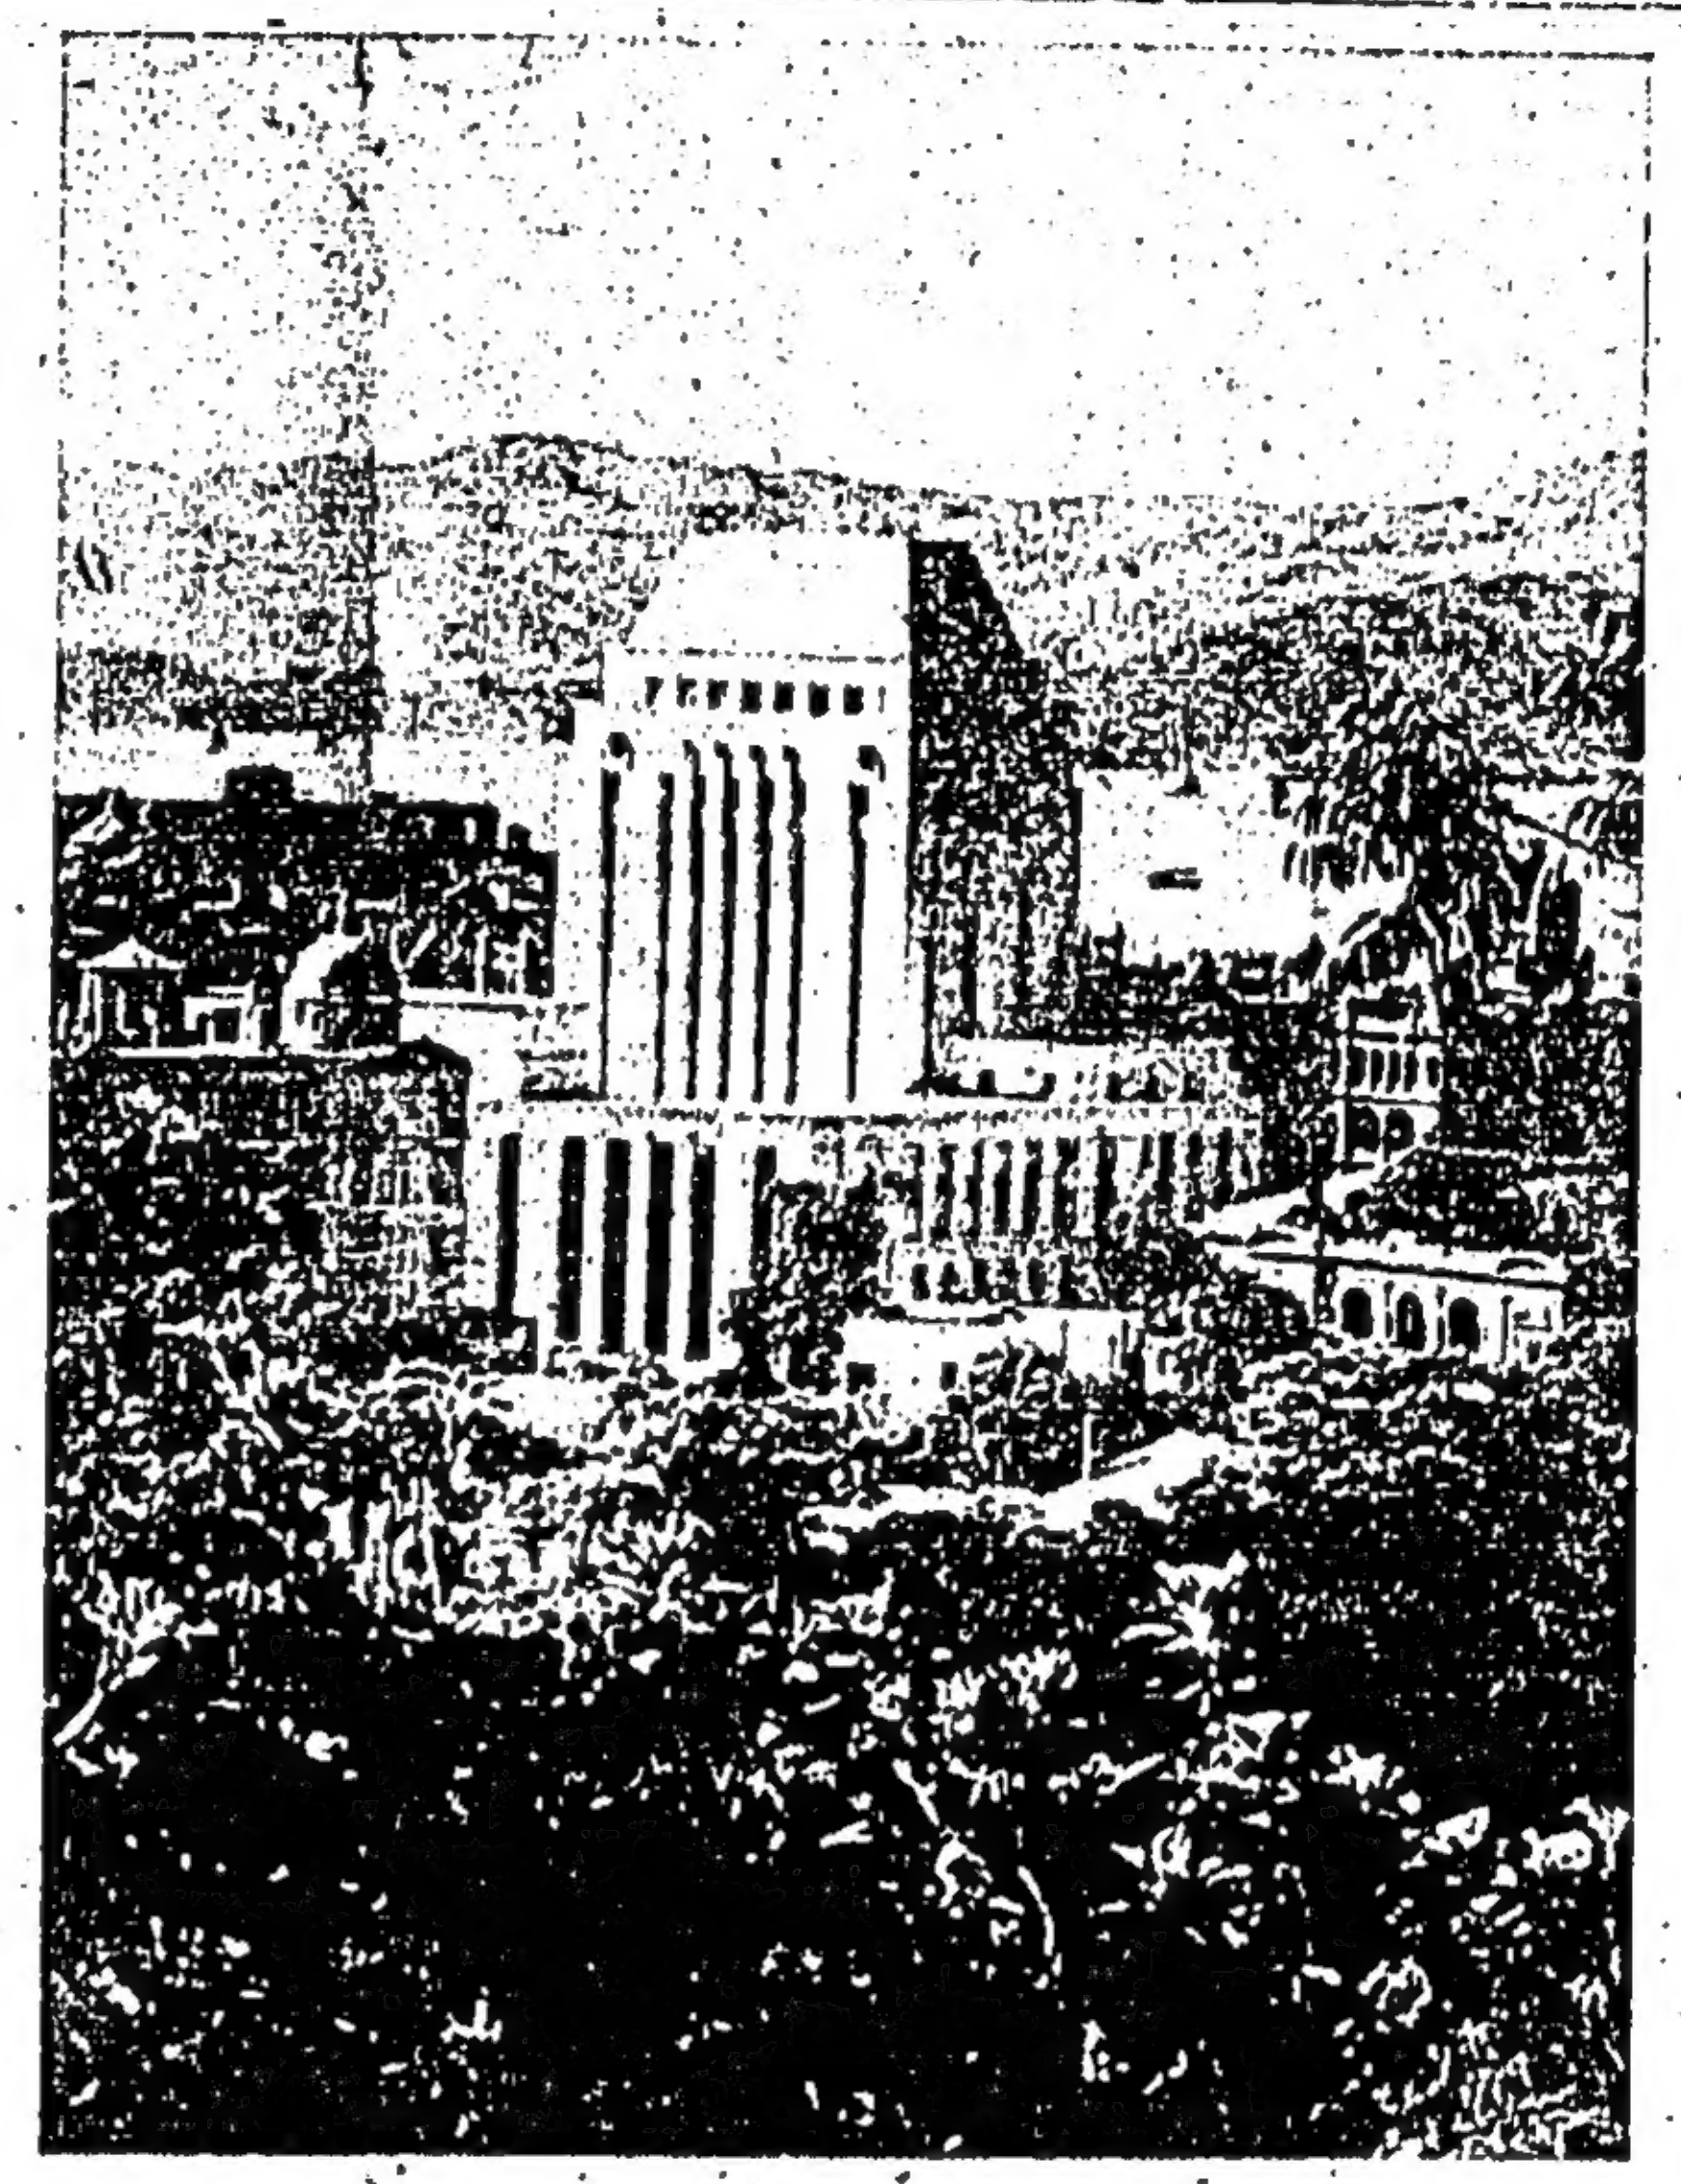

ADVANCE TO CONTINUE
 Rome, Oct. 9.
 Well-informed quarters intimate that the Italian advance will continue as soon as the positions gained have been consolidated. They declare that the full does not mean that the war can now be ended by negotiations.
 Nevertheless, Italy is still prepared to enter into conversations with Britain and France as signatories of the 1906 Convention, governing the Powers' activities in Ethiopia.
 It is officially announced that the Government has authorised Count Vinti to leave his post in Addis Ababa on Thursday.—Reuter.

GAS BOMBS
 Addis Ababa, Oct. 9.
 The Ethiopian commander north of Jijiga has sent a message that the Italians are concentrating 50,000 men near Jijiga and are inflicting heavy casualties upon the Ethiopians with chemical bombs. The Ethiopian forces are fighting doggedly.—United Press.

Italy Highly Gratified

WARM APPROVAL OF GENEVA SPEECHES
 Rome, Oct. 9.
 The news of the refusal of Austria and Hungary to join in sanctions against Italy was received with the greatest satisfaction here to-day.
 It is felt that if the Stresa Front is broken the Danubian Front will still remain intact. Italy anticipates a continuation of economic collaboration between Italy, Austria and Hungary, instituted with the Rome Protocol of 1934.
 It is felt that Yugoslavia and Switzerland, who are among Italy's best customers, will make common cause with her, and that Spain, too, may join her. It is also hoped, though not with the same confidence, that Germany may also side with Italy.—Reuter.

"ROAD REMAINS OPEN"
 Rome, Oct. 9.
 "The road remains open," declared an Italian spokesman joyfully to-day, on learning that Austria and Hungary had refused to join in sanctions against Italy.
 Other League members, however, believe that the measures which 50 nations will adopt on Thursday will cause Mussolini soon to sue for peace, due, firstly, to the League plans for a collective boycott of Italian goods, the cutting off of Italy's supplies of (Continued on Page 12.)

London, Oct. 9.
 Friendliness towards Japan was urged by Sir Francis Lindley, former British Ambassador to Tokyo, in the course of a speech before members of the Royal Asian Society.
 Sir Francis declared that "our best line of policy is to keep on good terms with Japan, and, above all, not to encourage the Chinese un-

ITALIANS SENT FROM MALTA

Prejudiced Safety Of British Base
 Malta, Oct. 9.
 The number of recent deportations of Italians from Malta, according to the authorities, is specially ascribed to evidence that the activities of the deportees was prejudicial to the safety of Malta as a fortress.
 It is stated in this connection that the Italo-Tripoli air line which calls at Malta has changed its pilots with great frequency in the past several months, thus giving many flying men an opportunity to get acquainted with Malta from the air.—Reuter.

less we are in a position and intend to give them material assistance. Nothing has done more harm than the encouragement which Britain has given countries with which we have shown sympathy and which has not been followed up by material help.
 "Humanity of the kind which will eventually leave a country in the lurch when that sympathy is put to the test," said Sir Francis, "is not more preferable than the (Continued on Page 12.)

GREAT BANKING BLOCK OPENS SIGN OF FAITH IN H.K. FUTURE SPEAKERS STRIKE NOTE OF OPTIMISM

Impressive in appearance, and outwardly reflecting the stability of the great financial house to which it belongs, the new Head Office of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation was officially opened this morning, in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering, by His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government (the Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith).
 The palatial building, which is easily the biggest structure in the Colony, is situated partly on the site of the old Bank and on ground previously occupied by part of the City Hall. It is now one of the landmarks of the Colony, presenting a striking appearance whether viewed from the harbour, the two main thoroughfares which it flanks, or the upper levels.
 In asking His Excellency to open the building, the Chairman of the Court of Directors (Mr. Stanley Dodwell) said there was much to justify the Colony in looking forward in confident expectation of better times, with undiminished faith in the future of the Colony and of China.

GENERAL ELECTION RUMOURS PARLIAMENT MEETS ON OCTOBER 22 MID-NOVEMBER TEST?

London, Oct. 9.
 The summoning of Parliament a week earlier than was anticipated, October 22 instead of October 29, is again given prominence as indicating the prospect of a general election in the near future.
 Well-informed political circles believe that an appeal to the country will not be long delayed and a date soon after the middle of November is the most probable. However, the question will largely depend upon the amount of business to be cleared when the House meets on October 22.
 It is possible a number of Bills may be dropped in the usual "slaughter of the innocents" that takes place at the dissolution of Parliament. Those Bills are at present the subject of active consideration by the Departments concerned.
 There is also the possibility that the Government may drop all outstanding business and after the debate on international affairs proclaim a general election immediately in order to obtain a new mandate to deal with whatever developments in the international situation may arise.—Reuter.

ITALY'S COSTLY CAMPAIGN THOUSANDS SUFFER FROM DISEASE

Paris, Oct. 9.
 Italy's Ethiopian campaign thus far has cost 12,000 men in dead, wounded and sick.
 French agents report that 10,000 Italian soldiers are suffering from tropical diseases and have passed through the Suez Canal on their way home. There are 2,000 others stricken in the home camps. They say a steady stream of invalids, most of them suffering from dysentery, malaria and swamp fever, is flowing northward.
 This total is not considered large due to the fact that many of the 200,000 colonial troops and Northern Italians are unaccustomed to the blistering African heat.
 French experts believe the prospects of an Italian defeat by slow starvation, owing to the lack of meat, is causing the high command acute anxiety.
 The commanders are said to have informed Signor Mussolini that even mild economic sanctions would prove fatal to the expeditionary forces if they succeeded in cutting off the regular supplies of frozen meat. Significance is therefore attached to the reports that Britain is preparing to sequester all refrigerator ships under the British flag.—United Press.

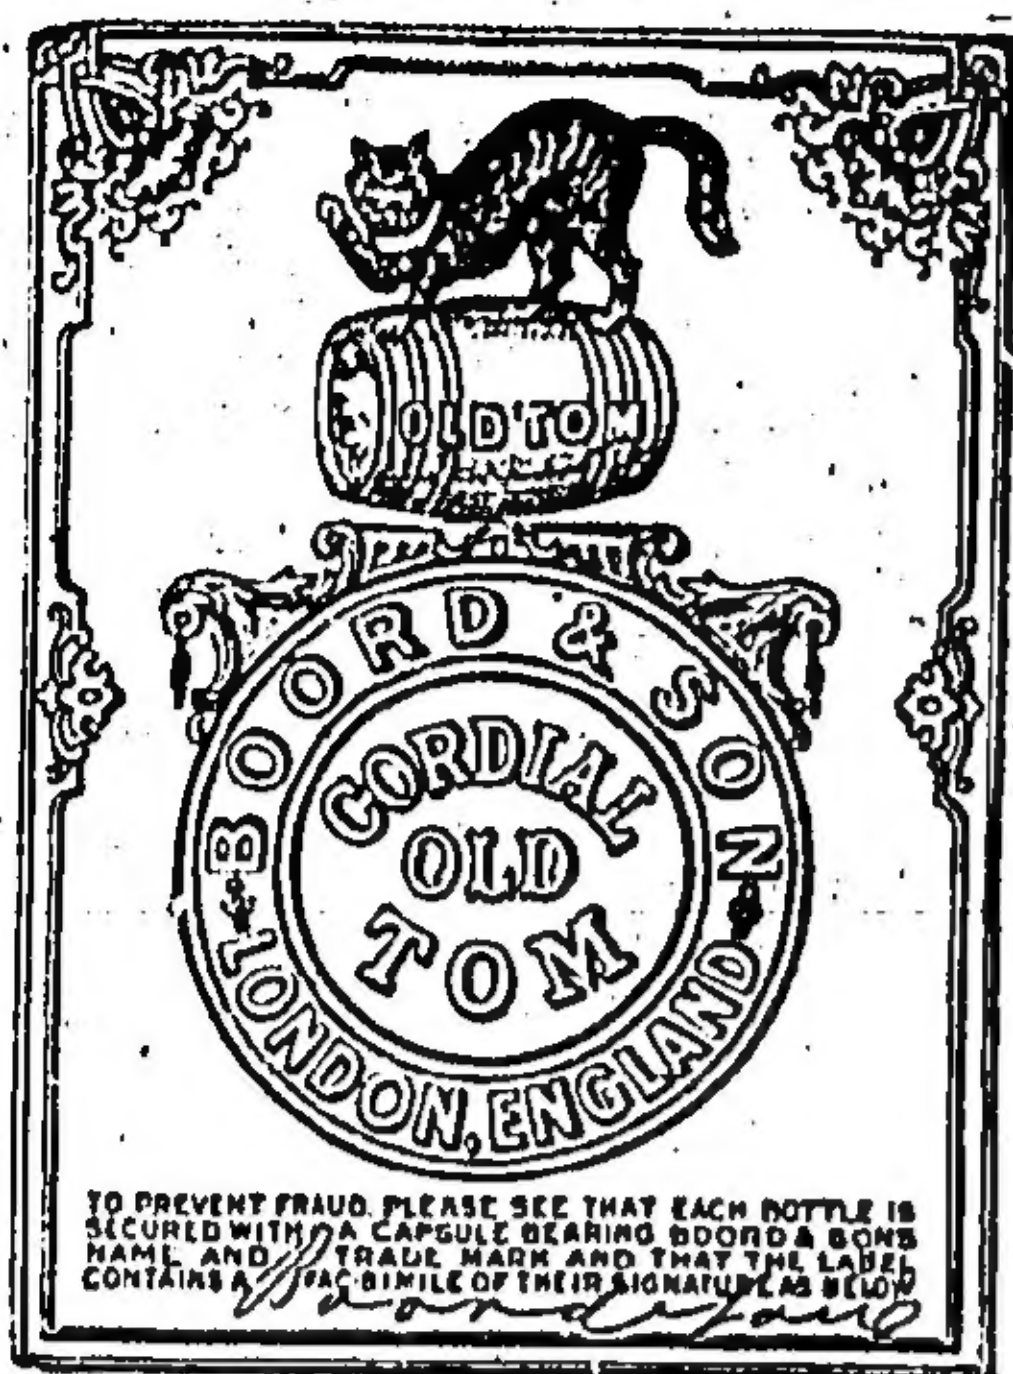

Mr. Stanley H. Dodwell, Chairman of the Bank's Court of Directors, in asking His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government to open the building, said:—
 Your Excellencies, ladies and gentlemen,—It is my privilege, on behalf of the Hongkong & Shanghai Bank, to extend to all our friends a most cordial welcome to our new home, and, at the same time, to thank His Excellency, the Officer Administering the Government for so kindly consenting at such comparatively short notice to occupy what may be rightly described as the "key" position at our opening ceremony. I am sure that it will be His Excellency's wish that I should first of all express our profound regrets at the unfortunate circumstances which have prevented Sir Thomas Southern from being with us to-day. The keen disappointment which I know Sir Thomas himself feels that his illness has prevented him, will be shared by everyone of us. The sympathy of the whole Colony has been with Lady Southern in the anxious time she has recently passed through and our relief is indeed great that Sir Thomas is now well on the way to complete recovery. We are fortunate that Sir Thomas' mantle on this occasion has fallen on one who has always taken the keenest interest in all forms of the Colony's development. As a close friend of his, I personally am particularly happy to be associated with him in so important an event in the life of the Colony.

MODERN BUILDING
 I will not inflict on you a lengthy description of our new premises. They are the outcome of much thought and careful planning on the part of the management whose main object has been to ensure that the Bank's staff, who direct and control its world wide activities from a head office situated in a semi-tropical and undoubtedly trying climate, should be equipped with the latest health-giving and time-saving appliances that modern science can provide so that they in turn can render to the clients of the Bank service which is second to none.
 The great bulk of the work in connection with the planning of the building fell upon Mr. Grayburn, in consultation with Mr. Wilson, while the supervision and, to a large extent, the selection of the equipment was done by our chief accountant, Mr. Morse. The Banking Hall has had to be dismantled for this occasion, but when you have seen it with its equipment reinstated and have inspected the vaults and safe deposits, I have no doubt whatever that you will be satisfied that their (Continued on Page 9.)

DANGER TO LEGATIONS ITALY'S BOMBERS WILL BE CAREFUL

Rome, Oct. 9.
 Fears that the Legation quarter at Addis Ababa may be bombed from the air are stated to be groundless, as planes will carefully avoid that part of the city if they attack it at all.
 The only problem, it is stated, will be to distinguish the quarter and it is suggested a foreign flag be flown there.—Reuter.

Noted Air Ace Retires

One More Flight—Then Farewell

KINGSFORD-SMITH TO END AIR RACING

Los Angeles, Sept. 25. SIR CHARLES KINGSFORD SMITH, Australia's air hero, will retire from active flying this year—but he plans one final gesture as a farewell to aviation.
This will be a flight from England to Australia.
"I've reached an age," Sir Charles said to-day, "when 7,000 flying hours in 19 years beckon me to take my place in the development of mail and passenger air services. It has been my ambition for some time to enter commercial aviation."
"I am done with making fast time or breaking records. I shall make one more flight from London to Melbourne—and then finish."
Asked what he considered the hardest flights of his career, Sir Charles replied: "Those from England to Australia were the hardest—that is, physically. They were the most tiring. Those between the United States and Australia required more skill and possibly were the most dangerous."
Sir Charles said he intended to devote himself to perfecting a regular air service between Australia and New Zealand.
He denied that his England-Australia flight would be an attempt on the existing record, but certain of his friends here believe that this is, in fact, his secret intention.
Sir Charles will shortly fly his "Lady Southern Cross" across the United States and ship her to London in readiness for the flight.

British Cinema Industry Soon Equal American

—Alexander Korda

New York, Oct. 1. MR. ALEXANDER KORDA, the London film director, who returns to England next week after a visit to Hollywood, has caused a stir by his vigorous championing of the British film industry.

"I think that within three years, or perhaps two, the British film industry will be as great in production and earning power as the American film industry," he told New York reporters.

"It stands to reason that a city in England which is a spiritual and cultural centre of a great Empire will develop this great art on the same scale as it did great literary figures."

Mr. Korda was willing to concede Hollywood nothing in the matter of sunlight.

"The sun shines for five months of the year in England," he said, "and the British sunlight is just as lovely as the American sunlight."

"All important motion pictures in three years will be made in colour," he predicted. "The colour pictures will improve as rapidly as did the sound pictures."

Mr. Korda, largely credited in America with having raised the standard of British films to a point where they rival the best Hollywood productions, envisages the widest horizons for the film industry.

"Producers are still under-estimating the mentality of their audiences," he said. "The intellectual curiosity of youth must be satisfied. Politics, economics, history, sociology—these are matters of prime interest to 'moderns'.

"The cinema must attempt to satisfy that curiosity and forget its eternal preoccupation with love stories," —Reuter.

INVENTOR OF "BIG BERTHA" MEMORIAL ERECTED IN GERMAN CITY

Frankfurt-on-Main, Oct. 3. In this time when everywhere tablets are erected for people once connected with Germany's army, or in commemoration of military events, the Burgomaster of Frankfurt ordered a memorial tablet to be affixed at Number 8 Heister Street where Professor Friedrich Heinrich Hausenberger, the constructor of "Big Bertha," the gun which shelled Paris during the World-War, was born. Professor Hausenberger died in 1926.—United Press.

6 HOURS ADRIFT IN RUNAWAY RED AIRSHIP

Moscow Sept. 30. A wild six hour ride in a runaway dirigible, which was torn from its moorings in a violent storm, was the fate of nine Soviet workers of Stalino city who had been invited to visit the airship.

A sudden storm ripped away the eighteen posts to which the dirigible V-2 was fastened at the airport, and the rising ship shook off the ground crew of forty who clung to the mooring ropes.

Three of the ground crew were carried aloft, but two of them let go of the ropes and were slightly injured in falling to the ground. The third managed to climb up into the gondola of the airship.

Five of the dirigible's crew were in the gondola with the visitors, and, fortunately, managed to control the airship in the high wind. They were unable to land the dirigible until 3 a.m., after having spent six hours in the air.

The ground crew sent up rockets and flares and lit bonfires to guide the airship.

SECRET DEATH RAY CAN WIPE OUT THE WORLD

Terrifying Future

A new British ray, which may have the effect of stopping all future war, has been perfected by an eminent English scientist, who has handed his secret to the Cabinet.

"War must become as dead as a dodo," the discoverer says, "because the ray, which I have called 'Z' ray, is capable of such terrifying powers of wholesale destruction that to employ it to the full might have the effect of exterminating humanity."

He declares that the ray will—

Transmit deadly poisons such as hydrocyanic acid gas through the atmosphere;

Wipe out a city upon which it is directed by reproducing stratospheric conditions in the air so that the occupants asphyxiate;

Bring down aeroplanes and stop motor-car engines;

Broadcast malignant bacteria of deadly diseases over wide areas;

Wreak wholesale destruction upon the crops and food supplies of any nation.

The scientist in whose brain this new and terrible secret was evolved developed his discovery in a lonely country laboratory during the past three years, and gave full details to the Government only a few days ago.

England Ahead Of Italy

He granted a London newspaper an interview on condition that nothing was published that would reveal his identity, and solely because he believes that Britain having in her possession such a deadly weapon may be useful to British diplomacy in the desire to maintain peace.

He has been working the revolutionary theory that light is a substance containing all the essential minerals, and that by transmitting radio-active emanations on the correct wavelengths such as poison as hydrocyanic acid gas, for instance, could be generated in the air.

He has produced and controlled, not only the deadly "Z" ray, but what is more important, an adequate defence against it.

"That," he said, "is what I want the whole world to know—and for this reason. I am convinced that the principle of the Marconi Ray which has recently been secretly tested in Italy is the same as mine.

"But England is one step ahead of Italy. There is a defence against Marconi's ray—and the Cabinet has that secret in its possession.

"A deadly poison such as prussic acid gas can easily be transmitted over any selected area by means of my ray. It would actually be generated in the air. An entire city could be wiped out in a few minutes.

"Another deadly and equally terrible form of attack would be the reproduction of stratospheric conditions over an enemy city. As you know, men cannot live in the rarefied air of the stratosphere, so the occupants of the city would die. I

An exhibition that Mussolini forgot: The caption on this photograph, taken from the November 17, 1934 issue of the Illustrated London News reads: "Bringing home to the new generation the realities of the Great War. A trench in a special exhibition in Rome. The exhibition illustrated by means of this photograph is designed not only to show the new generation what the Great War meant, but to bring home to them the even more horrible nature of any future wars."

The Herring is Moonstruck

THE herring is a moonstruck fish. This fact is known to fishfolk on the East Coast, who look for the full moon to give them their biggest catches, but it is a phenomenon for which science has not yet any explanation.

The point was mentioned by Mr. W. C. Hodgson, of the Lowestoft Marine Laboratory, to members of the Zoology Section of the British Association Conference in London last month.

have actually produced such conditions in my own laboratory.

Other experiments at the Professor's country laboratory have successfully proved the "Z" rays paralysing effect upon any petrol-driven motor.

Using a comparatively weak transmitter he has stopped a motor car at a range of 500 yards, and forced aeroplanes to descend with useless engines. With a more powerful transmitter the area of the ray's activities could be indefinitely extended.

"Enemy bombing planes would never be able to get within miles of London, or the coast, for that matter," added the Professor. "It is possible not only to make the engine useless but to explode the petrol in the tank of an aeroplane, bringing the machine down in flames."

Financial Backing

The Professor stumbled upon the line of research which has led to the discovery of this new ray nearly three years ago, when he found that human ailments were susceptible to varying wavelengths.

He was urged forward to greater efforts by a wealthy patron who has since died. "Pursue your investigations," his patron said, "for there are still greater possibilities in this."

Maid's Screams Save Norma Talmadge

Hollywood, Sept. 15. A man carrying a box knocked at the door of screen-star Norma Talmadge's apartment in Beverly Hills to-day. Her maid, Matilda Skirk, answered the door.

"I have brought some flowers for Miss Talmadge," said the man. But Matilda did not unhook the safety chain from the door.

The man jammed an automatic against the maid's heart. "Hands up! Say nothing," he said.

Matilda opened her lips and screamed. Norma came out of her bedroom and at sight of the man also started to scream.

The man fled, leaving behind the box of "flowers"—empty. The police believe the man hoped to kidnap Miss Talmadge. —Reuter.

Before he died he promised the scientist ample financial backing on condition that he remained anonymous in his work, and placed any results at the sole disposal of the British Government.

Since that time the Professor has worked unceasingly at his experiments, until, within the last few months, he has begun to achieve results with such staggering possibilities that he has decided to make them public in the interests of humanity and world peace.

DISEASE ALWAYS CONTRACTED IN CHILDHOOD

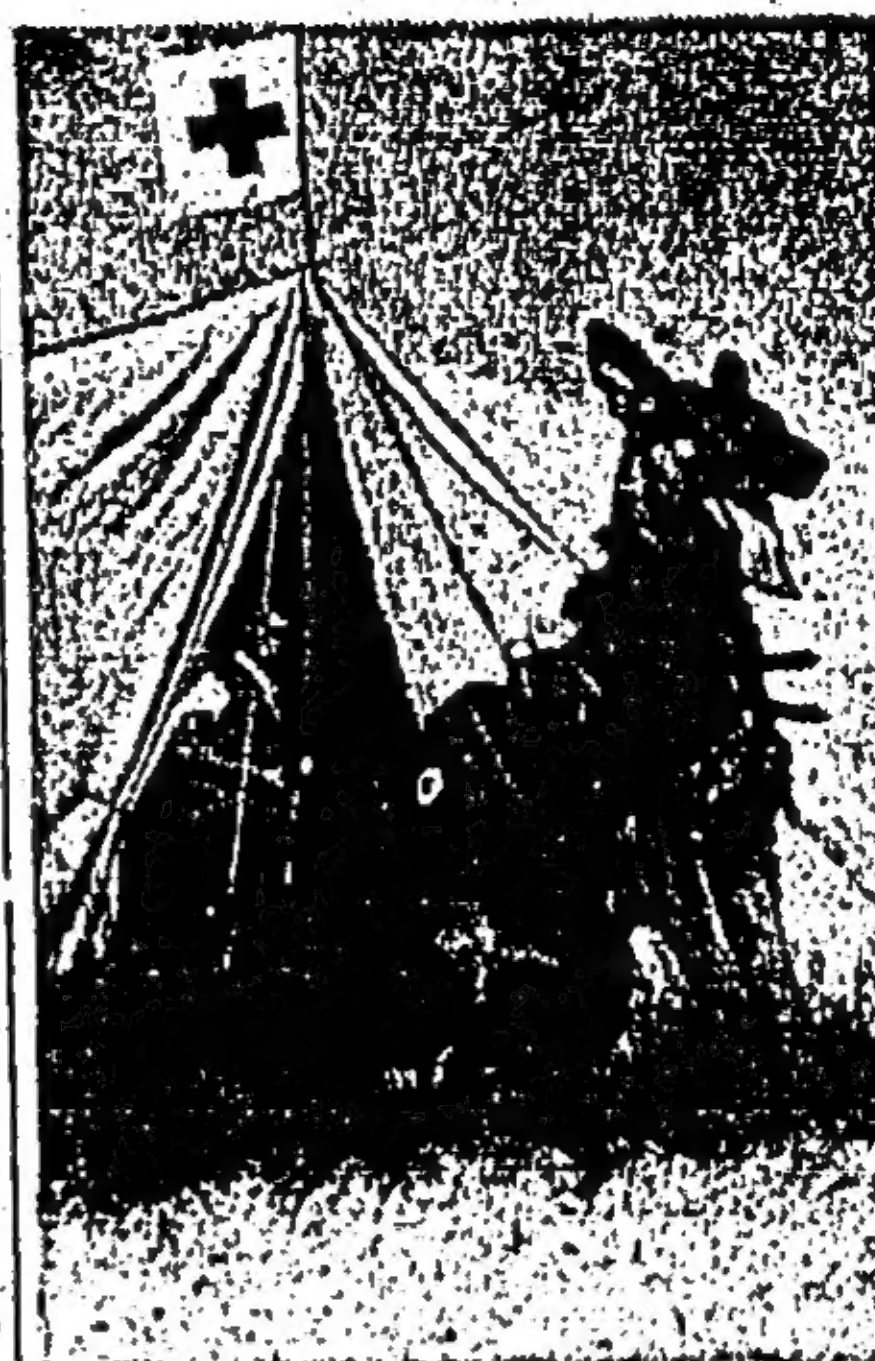

AFTER some years' research, the Health Department of New South Wales has reached the conclusion that tuberculosis is contracted in childhood with a dormant period for the disease.

Sometimes it develops rapidly but, in many cases, the disease remains dormant until a dangerous period is reached, usually between the ages of 15 and 25, states Austral News.

The conclusion is expected to throw much light on the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis.

Also in Sydney, at the University, special attention is being given in cancer research to the possibility of finding a chemical substance, which, if injected into a tumour would make it more to the action of X-rays.

"Many investigators believe," said Dr. Moppett (medical biologist of the Research Committee), "that when radiation cures cancer, it is due to co-operation with the body's defences."

The German Red Cross has arranged its first dog school at Nuremberg. The picture shows a dog with its equipment in front of a tent. The equipment includes among other things a dressing case and a canteen.

Is the Earth Drying Up?

THE Sahara Desert is advancing, and enormous areas of land have become sterile within the past 100 years in Australia, the United States and China. This fact led Professor E. B. Stebbing, of Edinburgh, to put to the Geography Section of the British Association the questions "Is the earth drying up?" "Studies and investigations during a recent tour through the West African Colonies and across the Sahara," said the Professor, "show that during the last three centuries the desert has advanced some 170 miles and now threatens Northern Nigeria and the French Niger Colony."

Science Plans Sawdust Dinners For Future Meals

CARS WILL RUN ON ROTTEN VEGETABLE SAWDUST dinners, a nation-wide hot water supply and motor-cars that run on either wood-fuel or rotten vegetables, are some of the marvels which science will offer us in the near future.

The use of sawdust as food is due to the researches of Dr. Bergins, a famous German scientist, for the Bergin company. By an hydrolytic process, Dr. Bergins declares, 70 per cent. of wood can be transformed into sugar.

NEW GUINEA NOW A WEALTHY COLONY

PRECIOUS METAL AIDS FORWARD MARCH

New Guinea, savage and unknown, until Australia, under mandate, assumed its government and colonisation, is now a greater gold producer than any Australian State except Western Australia. Figures just prepared for submission to the Council of the League of Nations show that New Guinea exported £1,367,616 worth of precious metal, last year.

The known native population is now 426,329, besides 30,695 indentured labourers. No fewer than 30,600 are engaged in plantation work, mining, domestic service, shipping and commerce and in administration work. Direct control has been established over 52,746 of a total "mandated area" of 93,000 square miles, states Austral News.

The report for the League gives details of native misdemeanours. Of 1,868 natives charged, 1,776 were convicted. The most common breach was absence from quarters at night. Others were dancing and singing after 9 p.m., playing football in forbidden areas, secrecy, gambling, unlawfully wearing clothing on the upper part of the body, enticing a wife from her husband, having possession of liquor, and failing to appear for census taking. In addition 1,267 were convicted on criminal charges.

The waste substance left, known as lignin, offers rich possibilities as fuel for motor vehicles.

Research into the transformation of rotten vegetables into motor fuel is being undertaken at the Bushey Park laboratories of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research. Experiments have been conducted in the fermentation of grasses, straws and other vegetable waste, and an industrial application of the process has been patented.

Public Hot Water Supply

All that is now needed for the new process to compete with the prevailing prices of mineral oil is the collection of vegetable matter in sufficiently large quantities.

Similar results have been obtained in the production of power alcohol from the fermentation of artichokes.

A scheme for the public supply of hot water throughout England has been devised by Mr. E. Kilburn Scott, the well-known engineer, based on similar systems already in use in Germany, the U.S.A. and Soviet Russia.

In Germany boilers of electric power stations are giving public supplies of steam and hot water. At Pittsburgh public buildings, hotels, apartment houses, foundries and works receive steam from superseded power station boilers.

Power stations in Moscow and other Soviet cities supply hot water as well as electricity, and have proved highly efficient.

In England, already, power houses at Leicester and Slough supply steam to factories.

TRIED TO BURN HER—THEN LET HER FREEZE

Edmonton (Alberta) Sept. 1. A husband who first tried to burn his wife and then left her to freeze to death, has been hanged at the Fort Saskatchewan Prison. He was William Haverlyuk, aged 43. It was established at his trial that he first poured kerosene over his wife, setting her alight. She escaped momentarily and ran out into the snow, rolling in it to put out the flames. Haverlyuk then beat her unconscious and left her to freeze to death. —United Press.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, Oct. 9.
The following reports on the New York Stock Market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's markets: The stock markets to-day were irregularly higher. Conditions were very dull with traders awaiting war and domestic business developments, from which very little incentive was derived. Bonds were irregular. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were dull.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: The market was moderately higher, but dull, awaiting news. The National Biscuit Company has reduced its soda cracker prices by 20 per cent. The Consolidated Gas Corporation estimates its 1935 earnings at $1.50 per share, against 2.18 per share last year. The Electric Bond and Share Company has earned 2 cents per share for the quarter ended September 30th, against 3 cents during the corresponding quarter of last year. The asset value of Adams Express was $9.20 per share on September 30th.

Cotton: The early strength of the market was due to forecast of colder weather in the South-West. Demand was insufficient to absorb light hedging, the peak of which is possibly delayed until November, due to the lateness of the crop.

Wheat: Demand for flour is subsiding. Cash buying was not aggressive and the market is dependent on the strength of the foreign markets, which is not evident at present. Canadian imports are becoming a factor.

Corn: Demand was lighter. First arrivals of the new crop indicate an early movement. Relative strength of December corn is probable, but the markets look lower. Remaining exportable surplus of Argentine corn is reported at 240,000,000 bushels.

Rubber: This market has ruled quiet, but firm. Purchases are advisable on any reactions.

Illness: Quiet, but strong. Prices look higher.

Silk: We expect a two-sided market at the present levels. The European situation continues to be a possible factor in the leading commodities.

"THE BANK"

To-day, the "Double Tenth," is a red-letter day in the history of the Colony, marking, as it does, the opening of the new Head Office of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, a building of which both the premier financial house of the Far East and the Colony as a whole may well feel proud. The structure which it replaces and which did service for so many years, pretentious though it was when first erected, was hardly in keeping with the needs of modern times or with the state of eminence to which the Bank has attained. To-day, the Bank is magnificently housed in premises which are tribute to all who have had a part in their construction, both for the amazing organisation which has enabled their completion in such rapid time and for the splendid workmanship put into a truly impressive pile. Despite the continued effects of the depression, a note of optimism was struck by the speakers at yesterday's ceremony. Mr. Dodwell's reminder that the old Bank building was opened during a period of temporary trade depression was apposite to the occasion. In those days there were Jeremiahs who took a doleful view of the situation and who doubted whether the Colony would again enjoy prosperity, a circumstance which is proved by the fact that the building was dubbed "Jackson's Folly." But Sir Thomas Jackson and the then Directors of the Bank were men of faith and vision—men who looked ahead and were firm in their conviction that the Colony would grow and increase in trade and commerce as time went on. They have been justified by events. It is in the same spirit that those in charge of the Bank's destinies to-day have caused this new mammoth building to arise—a spirit which refuses to believe that this Colony is finished. No Bank which had the slightest doubt as to the future of Hongkong would embark on such huge expenditure as the construction of this new building involves; the whole community can therefore take heart and courage from this convincing demonstration of faith in the Colony's future as one of the leading commercial and financial centres of the Far East. It is true that the depression which exists to-day is more deeply-rooted than that which

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE NEW CAVALRY

Nothing can better typify the disparity between the forces at present in conflict in East Africa than the episode reported from Samar yesterday when raiding Ethiopian cavalry were met and allegedly routed by Italian bombing and pursuit planes. Men who recall the fighting in the Great War and the helplessness of infantry and cavalry against aircraft, even when protected to some extent by artillery, will appreciate the plight of the black horsemen of Ethiopia who sought to take the town of Samar in Eritrea in a counter-thrust against the Italians. Apparently they were met near their objective by the new cavalry of the air, death-dealing pursuit planes which dived upon them with streaming machine-guns, and the heavier and perhaps deadlier bombers which dropped high explosive into their midst. It is a picture which does not bear detailed scrutiny. The Ethiopians were routed, so Rome's communique tells us. Here was a costly lesson to the defenders of Ethiopia's independence. Perhaps they will profit by it and confine their activities to the shelter of their friendly hills where bombers and pursuit planes cannot spread such devastation as on the open plain.

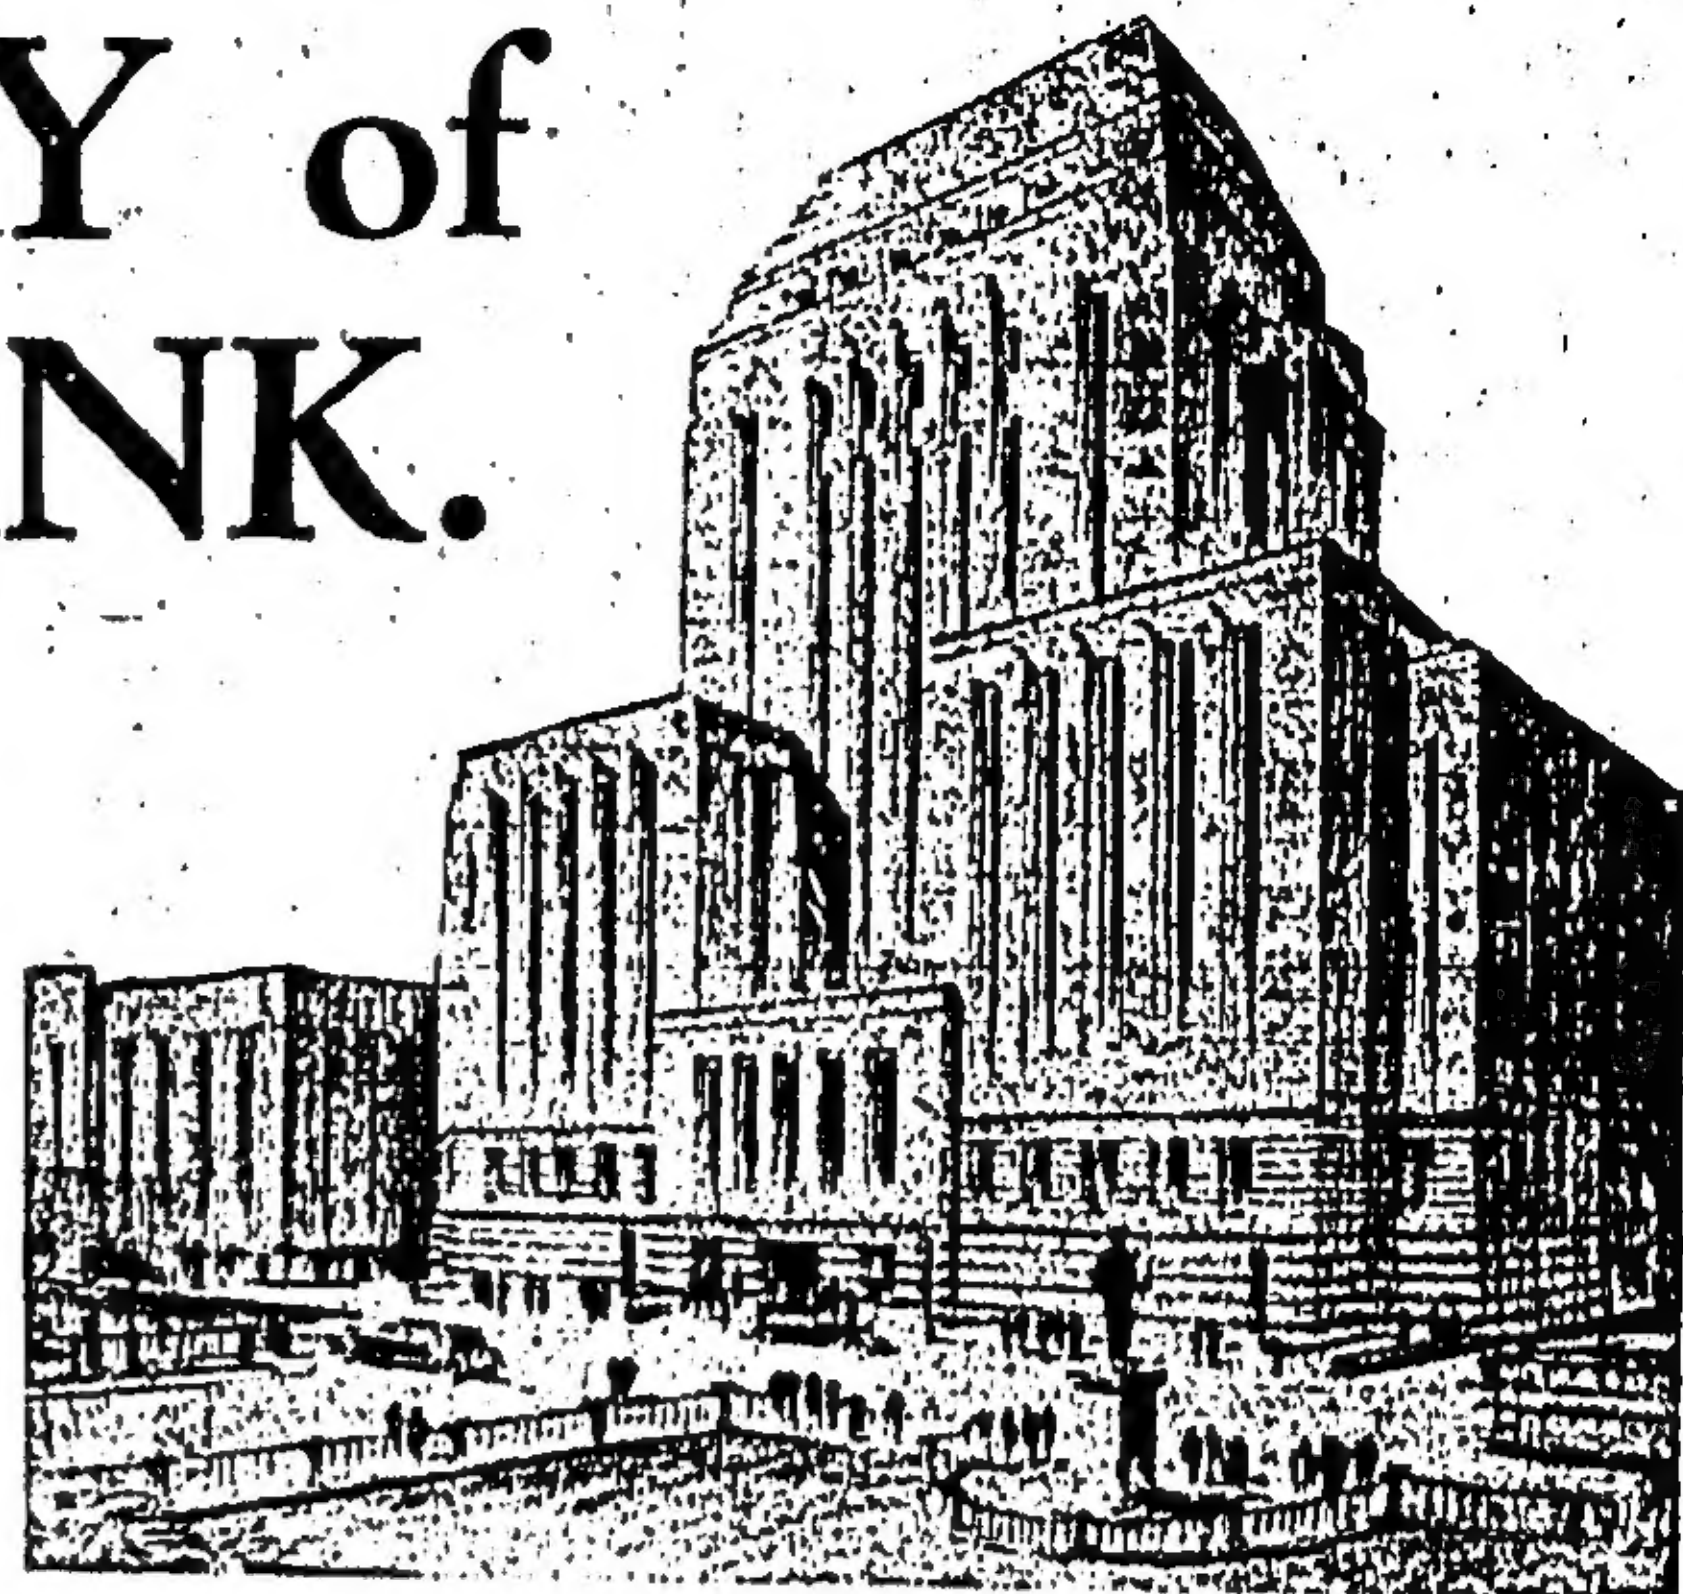

OPPOSITION EXPECTED

Opposition to the League of Nations' sanctions plan can be expected, even though the penalties take a comparatively mild form. Those nations which depend largely upon Italy for their export trade may be faced with a difficult decision. Hungary, for instance, was starving until Italy opened her doors to the peasants' grain crops and Italian money went to Buda-Pest. Austria has good reason to remember the formidable force which Rome possesses and the value of friendship there, for it was Signor Mussolini's challenge, many believe, which prevented the German Nazis crossing the Austrian frontier in 1934. Moreover, Prince von Starhemberg and the Royalist element in Austria believe that their chief hope for a restoration depends upon the backing of Italy. Here are economic and political reasons why Austria and Hungary may hesitate before falling into line with the League sanctions plan, in spite of pressure. Switzerland, too, has economic interests at stake. And times are hard in that little country, in spite of its bursting gold vaults. Further, in addition to these considerations, the neighbour nations of Italy suspect that sanctions may lead to a war and that they may find themselves the battle-grounds. Their hesitation to declare against Italy can be understood, therefore, even by those who believe in the efficacy and necessity of economic or even military action against an "out-law" state.

SPORTSMEN WELCOMED

Hongkong welcomed Shanghai's interport bowlers yesterday afternoon and the visitors played their first match here a short time after their arrival. They could not have been at their best, after a couple of rough days at sea, and their exhibition against the combined Police and Civil Service teams was indicative of great possibilities, therefore. Hongkong bowlers enthusiasts may look forward to some delightful and exciting afternoons during the Shanghai visit, and we can only hope that no matter who wins the interport Shanghai's bowlers will enjoy their visit here as much as we shall.

prevailed when the old Bank building was opened; it would be folly to deny that fact. Equally true is it that there is no immediate prospect of recovery. But the time will come when by international agreement the chief causes of the present slump will be removed; and when that time comes, this Colony will once again forge ahead and attain a measure of prosperity at present undreamt of. Our geographical position and the services we can offer—not the least of which are the abundant banking facilities available—contain the definite assurance of such a prospect. It is well, therefore, that we should rejoice with "The Bank" to-day and that our joy should be heightened by a confident belief in the coming of better times in the days ahead.

PROGRESS: The STORY of
A BANK.

An artist's impression of the new Bank building.

TO-DAY the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation enters another chapter in its history.

Its rise to its present eminence in the Far Eastern financial plane is one of the romances of the Colony and of banking, not only in the East, but anywhere in the world.

One has but to delve into its past history to realise how great a tree has grown from the small seed planted by a group of far-sighted business men in the old days of Hongkong.

In about four years after this island became British, only one bank had been established. An old newspaper of the Forties states that the Oriental Bank was established in Hongkong in April, 1845, being a branch of an unchartered joint stock bank which had been started in Bombay, had expanded and opened branches in several important Eastern centres. This bank issued notes, payable on demand in what was termed "Colonial currency."

In 1860 this concern had developed into the Oriental Bank Corporation, situated in Queen's Road, but by then it had a number of contemporaries who had established themselves during the past fifteen years, these being the Agra and United Service Bank, the Chartered Bank, the Chartered Mercantile Bank, and the Commercial Bank of India, all situated on Queen's Road, practically the only important business thoroughfare at that time.

Three years later, in 1863, we find these banks still in existence, but two more (one a French concern) had come into flourishing and substantial being—the Central Bank of Western Bank of India, and the Conpoir d'Escompte de Paris. Incidentally, the Agra Bank and Commercial Bank suspended in 1874 contracted a loan with payment in 1866, and this caused a great deal of uneasiness and gloom in the city, though the crisis was tide over without any very serious effects.

It was in 1864, while six banking institutions were already flourishing here, that the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank had its inception—a bold step, but as events have proved, thoroughly justified.

In July of the year Messrs. Dent and Company (afterwards affected by economic disaster) issued the prospectus of the newly-formed bank, which had a capital of $5,000,000 in 20,000 shares of $250 each.

The branches of the Bank which have been opened in various important centres all over the East, with agencies in various parts of the world, have seen further developments in the building up of the financial institution. Its present authorised capital is $50,000,000.

THERE is much of interest in the different locations of the Bank until it came to occupy its magnificent new premises. The first home of the institution was No. 1 Queen's Road, known as Wardley House (hence Wardley Street). This was situated on part of the site now occupied. The place was originally rented, but was purchased early in 1866 for the sum of $60,000. Wardley House was demolished in 1882 to make way for the construction of the old building on the present site.

From 1883-1884, the Bank was accommodated in the offices previously occupied by the P. & O. Company, situated west of the present Central Market, on the corner of Jubilee Street and Des Voeux Road.

Reference to the purchase of additional land for the erection of a new building was made at the half-yearly meeting of the Bank in August, 1882, when it was stated that the Corporation had lately acquired property adjoining their premises and it was contemplated erecting a suitable building on the site.

The site on which the new building has been erected is the finest in the Colony of Hongkong, and the building is worthy of the site. It covers the site of the old Bank and, in addition, that of the Theatre Royal and Wardley Street and extends the full width of Statue Square.

The Very Idea!

OF COURSE WE WERE
THERE, SILLYWe Went To Gaol When We Opened Our Last Bank

By J. P. Morgan Kelly

ALL the big nobs came along to see how we'd behave at the Bank ceremony this morning. But you must have seen us. We were the chap holding the glass of champagne in one hand, and a bag of silver in the other. People who went along there were actually feeling prosperous. All the same, with these other banks closing down in Hongkong we were a bit dicky about our balance with the big Bank.

So we asked Mr. Grayburn about it. "Suppose our money is quite safe in this place?" we said casually.

He looked startled. "Yes, yes, Mr. Kelly," he said. "I don't think you need worry about it."

Anyhow, we still weren't quite easy about things, so he ended up by giving us a first mortgage on the new building.

When we take possession you must come up and see us sometime.

We can guarantee our tellers won't tell. Perhaps that's why the lions'll never roar.

In the meantime, we haven't got much bullion but we're full of bull.

Drop in and have your overdraft renewed at our air-conditioning refrigerator.

With which we end. As the Chartered Bank teller said to the Hongkong Bank teller:

"Notes to you!"

We tricked everybody at the opening of the bank by not wearing a hat. They weren't able to tell whether we were a Peake tailor, a rickshaw coolie, a Bank (Continued on Page 4.)

"Now, stop talking nonsense! You're making much more as a Sanitary Inspector than you would if you became a clerk in the Bank."

BLOCK OPENS

endeavour leave nothing to be desired. The safe deposits in particular—the latest of their kind—are a new feature of which we hope the public will take full advantage, and facilities will be gladly given at any time to anyone desirous of inspecting them.

RAPID CONSTRUCTION

The construction of the building was completed in what must be considered record time for this part of the world. We vacated our old head office on China's National Day in 1933 and few of us then really believed that the old building could be demolished and the new one erected in the comparatively short space of two years. That this has been accomplished in spite of unforeseen difficulties in connection with the foundations is due to a very high standard of organization, co-operation and efficiency on the part of everybody concerned. We congratulate and thank all of them and particularly our architect, Mr. Wilson, and his able staff, amongst whom I would like to specially mention Mr. Ritchie, and our Construction Managers, Messrs. Logan & Amps.

The decision to build was taken some four years ago, when it became apparent that our old premises were quite inadequate for our requirements. The old building, which even in those days were periodical occurrences, and so pretentious did it seem at the time that, as most of you are aware, it became known as "Jackson's Folly". Though history has proved that had Sir Thomas Jackson's Folly only been one of great magnitude, complete reconstruction would have been avoided to-day, it will be surprising if amidst the gloom of the present depression Mr. Grayburn is not immortalised in the same way as was his illustrious predecessor.

It is indeed unfortunate that we should be taking possession of our new premises at a time when world conditions make it so difficult to take an optimistic view as regards the future, and the speeches of our unofficial legislators make it so dangerous to express one.

TRADE BARRIERS

While unsealable tariffs, embargoes, quotas, exchange fluctuations and arbitrary restrictions are so severely hampering international trade, in which so many of us are engaged, there is no option but to tighten up our belts, but happily there are unmistakable and ever increasing signs that economic nationalism will not succeed and that nations practising it will soon be forced to recognise that the world prosperity derived from trading with one another is vital to domestic recovery and expansion. No less an authority than the Secretary of State of the United States of America has already recognised it.

In an address on the foreign commercial policy of the United States delivered before the Chamber of Commerce representing the whole country, Mr. Cordell Hull expressed his conviction that by raising her tariffs three times in a decade since the great war his country had prepared the destruction of her vast foreign trade, upon which so much of her prosperity rested; he strongly advocated the simultaneous reduction to a more reasonable level of all existing tariffs, as well as the abandonment of the chief forms of discrimination in international finance and commerce, and concluded by stating that it was the intention of his Government to make every effort to restore international trade on a basis of equality and friendship.

Of all the evidence that justifies us in the belief that the removal of some of the many hindrances to overseas trade is not far off, I think that statement of America's foreign commercial policy is one of the most significant.

U. S. SILVER POLICY

It is, I admit, difficult for us out here to reconcile it with her silver policy, which has done our trade such grievous harm, but strangely enough it coincided with what appeared to be a much more reasonable method of carrying out that silver policy.

It is a statement which could not have been made by one of America's leading statesmen unless it had the support of a large body of responsible and influential opinion, and it is nothing less than a frank admission by the nation which first invented economic nationalism and which of all of them is best constituted to live within itself, that this selfish method of economic existence does not pay when the rest of the world adopts it.

Great Britain, for whose consumption the address was no doubt chiefly intended, may or may not have responded. We do not know, but we do know that she, on her part, is gravely concerned about her dwindling trade with China, and as evidence of her keen desire to improve it, has sent out Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, one of her most eminent financial authorities, to confer with the Chinese Government and advise whether and in what way the two nations can co-operate to the benefit of both.

BRIGHT PATCHES

Those are surely two bright patches on a dark horizon. There are many others all pointing to friendly and more reciprocal trading relations taking the place of those which at present savour far too much of economic war. And, therefore, while it is idle to deny that there are still many phases in the world situation to cause anxiety, there is also much to justify us in looking forward, as the Bank have done in erecting this fine building, in the confident expectation of better times to come.

It is in that spirit, and with undiminished faith in the future of the Colony and of our great and friendly neighbour, China, that I now call upon Your Excellency to declare this building open.

THE A.O.G.'S
SPEECHTHE GOVERNMENT AND THE BANK

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government in declaring the building open, said: I should like at the outset to associate myself very sincerely with the regrets which have just been expressed by Mr. Dodwell at the lamentable absence to-day of Sir Thomas Southern. What struck me most forcibly from the first moment that he was well enough for me to see him, which was precisely a fortnight ago to-day, was the obvious fact that, Budget or no Budget, to-day's function was the one to which he was still looking forward above all else. On behalf of everyone here and of myself in particular, I should like to express our very deep sympathy in his disappointment and our hope that his complete recovery to health, which we may now safely say is well on the way, may be as rapid as possible.

At the same time it would be dishonest if I did not confess that, had I known that the Fates were to pitchfork me into my present position for a few weeks and had I been given an option as to dates, I should without hesitation have chosen a period to include to-day's ceremony which, as we all know, is an epoch-making one in the history not only of this Colony but of the whole of the Far East. I am very grateful to Mr. Dodwell for his kind words of welcome. Our first serious meeting, as I dare say he will recollect, was shortly after the War when I had the satisfaction of taking him to about the twentieth hole at Fungling in a Championship match; and since that day I have been proud to think of him as a personal friend. The Bank has generally been fortunate in its Chairmen of Directors but seldom, I should say, more fortunate than when they elected Mr. Stanley Dodwell to that responsible post.

GOVERNMENT AND BANK

On an occasion like this it is natural to look backwards as well as forwards and to trace the Bank's history from that first prospectus in 1864 and through all its vicissitudes until the present day. Mr. Dodwell has already told you about "Jackson's Folly", the 1883 building, and I would not weary you with a recital of fluctuating share values, of note issues and of loans. It is not necessary to tell such an assembly as are gathered here to-day of the unique position held by "The Bank", as it is always called, in all that relates to the economic life of the whole of the Far East.

A year ago less seven days Sir William Peel, after laying the foundation stone of this building, hinted in his usual delicate way at the power wielded by this great institution; and I dare say that some people, if they could see, as I have for the last few weeks, how the glorious view from the verandah of Government House is nowadays obstructed, would perhaps twist this into some sort of an uncomplimentary parable. It would obviously be improper for me to attempt to say anything about the relationship between the Government and what is, although I believe not a "Central Bank" in the strict sense, such a preponderant element in the Colony's life as the Hong Kong & Shanghai Banking Corporation, except that that relationship is now as ever cordial and intimate. Still less am I willing to be drawn into a discussion on China's currency and the Leith-Ross Mission.

AESTHETIC QUALITY

Stepping lightly off that particular tight-rope on to the firmer and more congenial ground of aesthetics I should like to give my opinion for what it is worth that, in the view of all honest men of taste this magnificent building is of such a quality that generations yet unborn will gaze at it with something of the same gasp of admiration that we to-day bestow on, let us say, Durham Cathedral. I do not mean the interior conveniences or the engineering marvels or even the mosaics; I mean simply the lines that will be seen from the Star Ferry or whatever its equivalent may be a century or two hence. If anyone says to-day that it looks excessively utilitarian, one can only sigh and point at the neighbouring examples of pseudo-Renaissance or of what a dear friend of mine once called "Early Compadore". And if honest straight lines are to be condemned—well, I have no doubt that two thousand odd years ago some of the good citizens of Athens shook their heads at the very thought of putting such an atrocity as the Parthenon on top of their beloved Acropolis.

The Bank have reason to congratulate Messrs. Logan and Amps and all the engineers who have conspired to give them this model of what a bank should be. But the Colony as a whole, I am sure you will agree, reason to congratulate itself even more on the imaginative genius of the architect. If I may be allowed to add a personal note I should like to associate in those congratulations which rightly belong to Mr. Wilson, his assistant Mr. Ritchie, whose partner, here with us to-day, has for very long been a friend of my own family.

I wonder if it is too fanciful to suppose that buildings do in some degree reflect the characteristics of their occupants; perhaps I have got this the wrong way round. But look at the Law Courts across the way; do they not embody the dignity and the solidity of Sir Atholl MacGregor and Mr. Justice Lindell? Look a few yards further at the Club, typically superior and uncomfortable and diaphanous. Now the building which I have to-day had the very great honour of opening seems to me to be in the first place completely efficient; it is up-to-date, not to say quite a few minutes ahead of the clock; it has imagination and above all else it is honest.

I do not think that I could discover a better epitome of the characteristics of Mr. Grayburn and his wonderful staff.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I have great pleasure in declaring this building open and I wish the Bank all possible prosperity in its new home. (Applause.)

His Excellency then proceeded to open the main doors with a golden key.

HON. MR. CHAU'S
SPEECHBANK'S STEADY PROGRESS

The Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau said: The Directors of the Bank have asked me to say a few words on this most auspicious occasion. My sense of the honour which they have thus done me can only be equalled by the pleasure with which I accepted their invitation; for my association or rather the association of my family—with the Bank has been long and cordial, extending back to the time of my father, the late Mr. Chau Siu-ki—a period of nearly half a century. I have no doubt that the happy relations which have subsisted for so long between the Bank and my family, is but one instance of the cordial tie which binds the Bank to a countless number of Chinese merchants and depositors.

The new building which His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, has just opened, marks the culmination of one of the great achievements of the Hongkong & Shanghai Bank. It was a little over 71 years ago that the Bank was established. There were then already in existence here seven banking houses to cater for the needs of what was a comparatively small mercantile community; but, with the special object of effecting a needed improvement in the banking system obtaining at the time, its founders brought into being "Wayfoong". The Bank has since made steady and remarkable progress, outstripping all its rivals, to become the leading banking house in the Far East. It has now passed the full span of a mortal man, but, still full of the vitality of youth, it has kept abreast of the times; and the imposing building which now towers above our city is but one concrete example of its enterprise and activities.

COLONY'S SHEET ANCHOR

Those who are familiar with the history of the Bank know that during the early stage of its career it passed through many vicissitudes, but it successfully overcame all of them, and came out each time a little stronger. For several decades "Wayfoong" has been a source of great benefit not only to Hongkong but also to China. In times of financial difficulties such as the general strike and boycott in 1925, and the present economic depression, the Bank, under the able guidance of its successive Chief Managers, notably Mr. Grayburn, has served as a veritable sheet-anchor to the whole Colony. The people of Hongkong have long looked upon it as almost a public institution, and are proud of it. It has achieved great things in the past, but will, I am sure, do yet greater things in the future.

I congratulate the Directors and the Chief Manager on the completion of this magnificent building which is one of the largest and, in the view of many who are competent to judge, the most dignified building in the Far East. I wish the Bank every success, and hope that it will last as long as the granite which encases this fine edifice.

SPEECHFACILITIES FOR EVERYBODY

Mr. V. M. Grayburn said: Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen—I expect you have heard enough of speech-making for one day so I do not intend to detain you for any length of time.

First of all I wish, on behalf of the Staff, to thank His Excellency for coming here to-day to perform this opening ceremony. As he has said, it is something of an epoch-making event made more so by the presence of the Officer Administering the Government, and we members of the Bank staff are very grateful to him for giving us a helping hand and a send-off in our new home.

At the same time we wish to associate ourselves with all that has been said in regard to the absence of Sir Thomas Southern, who we know would like to have been here, and we join in wishing him a speedy recovery. I have no doubt, so I would like him to know that we appreciate the presence of his "better half" to-day. The attendance of Lady Southern adds lustre to any ceremony.

And now a few words about our new office. It is large I admit, but we have made it as simple as possible with the idea of despatching business as smoothly and speedily as possible, and can only hope it will prove successful.

A friend of mine, however, hinted to me a few days ago that in some people's small minds it might appear rather formidable and they might hesitate to come for small transactions, so in an endeavour to dispel any such idea I decided to inflict this small speech on you.

NOTHING TOO SMALL

Soon after I came out to the Far East over 30 years ago, I knew a man of my own young age who told me that he had met my father the night before and told him he was rather scared to bring his small savings to the Bank as we might not want to bother with them. My father replied—"My dear fellow, there is nothing too small for the Hongkong Bank and so far we have found nothing too big."

Ladies and Gentlemen, that is our boast and attitude to-day and that is why we have built a large office; it is not only that big things can be done in it but also that a big number of small things, and a big number of financially small people can be looked after and helped along the road. As far as we can possibly see we have prepared for all, high and low, rich and poor alike, and no-one need think he is too small since his is a most important matter to himself.

I hope those of you who will be coming in later, on business bent, will, after a little refreshment, have a look round the building and I think you will find much that will interest you.

We thank you all sincerely for coming to-day to give us a send-off.

FLAG DAY

S.P.C.A. EFFORT ON SATURDAY

Times are hard. We all know that. But somehow or other we have got to keep up our traditions as citizens of the British Empire. One of our oldest traditions is the custom of being kind to animals.

To ensure kindness to all living creatures it is necessary to maintain an organisation for promoting knowledge, creating interest, and, generally, keeping a watch on all concerns involving live creatures. We have our local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals here in Hongkong, and now is the time to support that Society as far as we are able. In previous years there has been an office-to-office collection for annual subscriptions and donations. This year the Society is trying a new method of raising funds. It is going to have a Flag Day on Saturday next, and the Society will be very grateful if residents will pause en route to the office, and buy a flag from one of the collectors. If your firm prefers sending a regular subscription by post, the Treasurer, c/o Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews, will gladly receive it. Contributed.

SHANGHAI BOWLERS SUFFER DEFEAT IN FIRST GAME

MRS. PERRY ON WEDDING HUSTLE

"WE HAD TO ASK POLICEMAN"

J. P.'S "O.K. I'LL BE THERE"

(By Walter G. Farr)

London, Sept. 13. Mrs. Fred Perry, speaking from New York over the Transatlantic telephone last night, told me of the reason for the hustle which led to her marriage with the world tennis champion at 11.55 p.m. on Thursday—just in time to avoid a wedding ceremony on Friday, the Thirteenth.

"The doctor says the injury to my right leg which I received when he lost his American singles title the other day will keep him out of the game for about ten weeks," the former Miss Helen Vinson, American film star, explained.

"The idea suddenly struck us that this was a golden opportunity to get married. You see we are both so busy—especially Fred—and for some weeks we had been wondering how we were going to fit this wedding in."

"I was anxious, too, to be with Fred all the time, for I felt I ought to see that he was married properly. So at dinner on Thursday we decided."

NOT SO EASY

"Getting married between tennis tournaments and film contracts isn't as easy as it sounds. And we had to hustle, if only to escape being married on the 14th."

"We motored out with the witnesses to Harrison, a town about 30 miles from here, where the rule about having to give 24 hours' notice is not in force, and found all the officials had gone home."

"So we called at a police station, where I went up to a policeman sitting behind a big desk and said, 'How can I get married?' He looked a bit surprised at first, but was soon telephoning to the town clerk, Mr. William Wilding."

"He then rang up the justice of the peace, Mr. Leo Mintzer, and found he was in bed. After we had pleaded with him he said, 'O.K. I'll be right along,' and we all rushed off to the town hall."

ALL IN 5 MINUTES

"It was touch and go. The licence was granted and the ceremony over in five minutes before midnight. But it was great fun, rushing things like that."

"We are going to California for the honeymoon to-morrow. No more tennis tournaments for Fred for ten weeks. You see what a good idea it was."

"I shall give up my film career? Certainly not. I believe that plenty of work for husband and wife is one of the most important things in married life. It helps a couple to be happy."

"I shall be crossing over to England in January to make a new film with Olive Brook."

"Does this mean you will be separated from your husband during that time?" I asked.

"I'm afraid it does," came the reply, "but it can't be avoided. Fred is going to Australia to play in the tennis championships there and I had already made plans for my visit to England."

"When I asked Mrs. Perry if she would advise her husband to do film work she answered: 'One film star in the family is enough. He will have to make up his own mind.'"

A LOVE MATCH

She passed the telephone to Fred Perry, and I told him that Miss Mary Lawson, to whom Perry was engaged last year, had wished him "all the luck in the world."

SOCCER TRANSFER

J. BERESFORD GOES TO PRESTON N. E.

London, Sept. 18. J. Beresford, Aston Villa's international inside-right, was transferred last night to Preston North End.

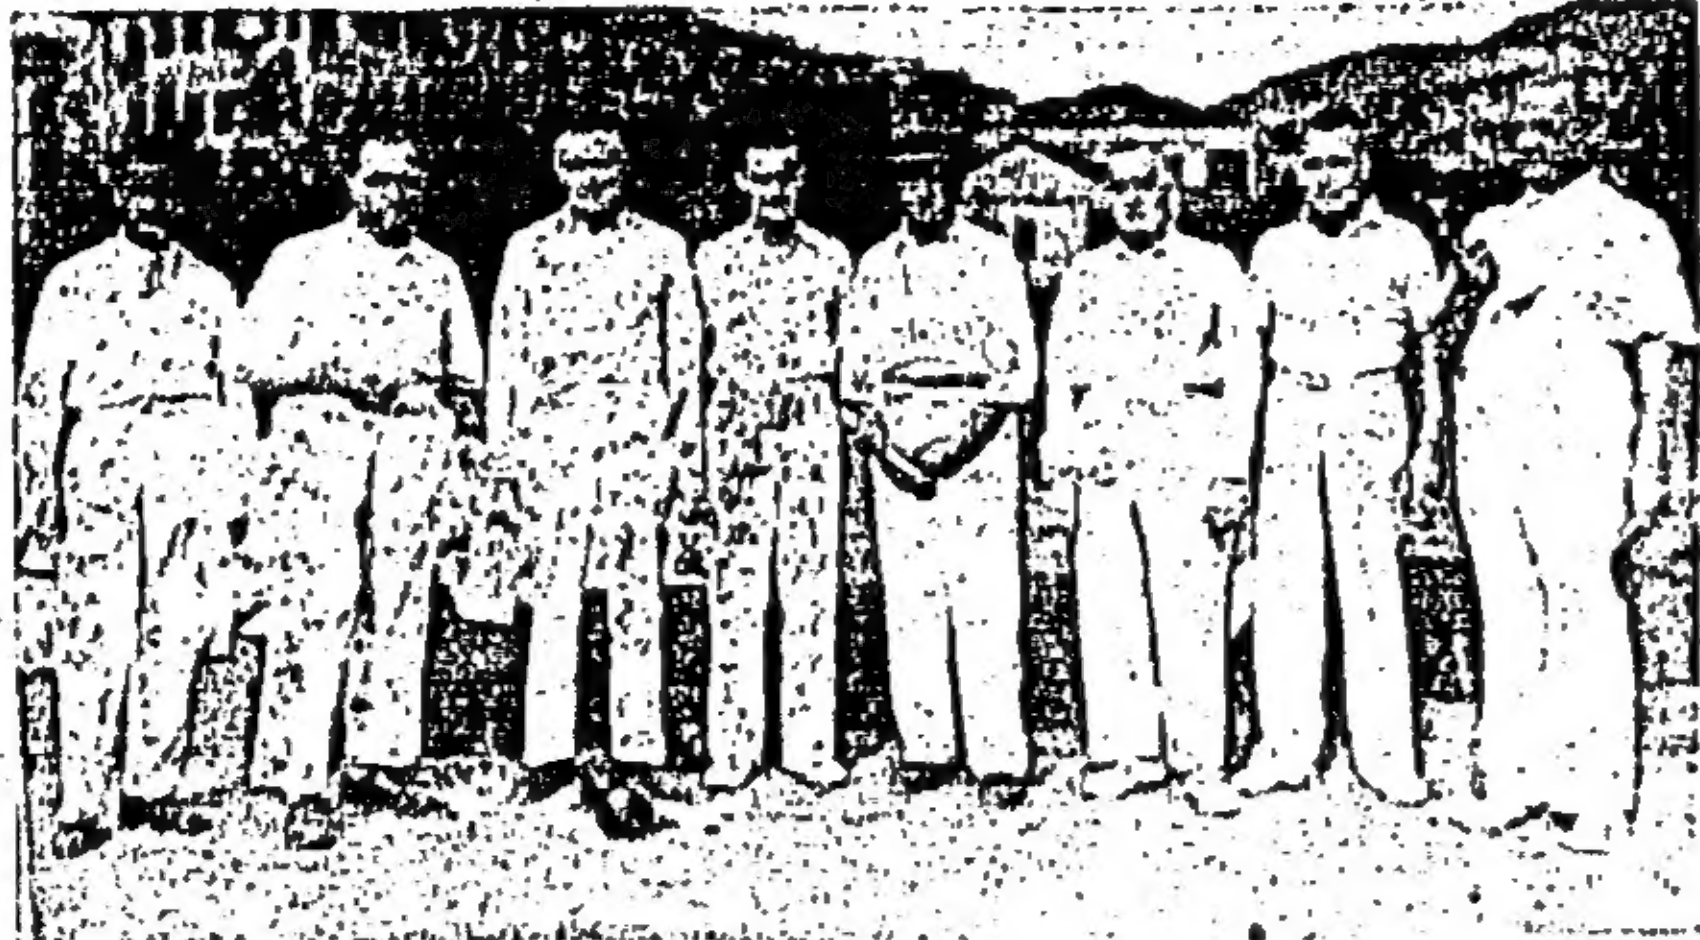

Born at Chesterfield, Beresford joined Aston Villa in May, 1927, from Mansfield Town. He made 23 first-team appearances for the Villa last season, at the end of which he went on the Continent and tour with the English team and played against Czechoslovakia. He also played for the Football League against the Scottish League last season.

It is a coincidence that Beresford was the name of Preston's inside-right of last season. That player has since been transferred to Luton.

Referring to the varied reports about his turning professional, he said, "I can give you my word that I shall be an amateur player certainly until this time next year."

"And you can call this marriage of mine a real love game," was his parting remark.

At the ceremony Miss Vinson's age was given as 27 and Perry's as 26. Miss Vinson's marriage in 1926 to Mr. Harry Vickerman, Philadelphia, was annulled in Los Angeles in 1934.

NEW WORLD WALKING RECORD

Cooper's Second Success in Two Months

For the second time in two months A. A. Cooper, of the Woodford Green A.C., captured a world's walking record, recently when he covered 5,000 metres at Battersea Park in 21 min. 52.4 sec.—6.6 sec. less than the previous best time, made by A. Schwab, of Switzerland.

Heavy rain had fallen just before Cooper was due to make his attempt and the event was postponed for half an hour. He covered the first mile in 6 min. 54 sec., six seconds inside his prepared schedule. He slowed down for two miles, and then gathered speed again for the final distance.

Cooper, who is the A.A.A. two miles champion, established a new world record for the 3,000 metres on July 20.

The Aga Khan has decided that the fee for the services of Bahram, the "Triple Crown" winner, is to be 500 guineas. He will stand at the Epsom Stud, Newmarket. The only other living sire whose fee is 500 guineas is Solario.

RUGBY BLUE IN SHANGHAI

FORMER OXFORD CAPTAIN

FOUR TWICKENHAM APPEARANCES

T. W. Gubb, who played for Oxford four times in the Inter-Varsity Rugby Match, and who has also captained Blackheath, arrived in Shanghai last Sunday. He is connected with the Imperial Chemical Industries in London and has come out China to join the affiliated company in Shanghai. It is understood that Gubb intends to play rugby and he should prove a most useful acquisition to the S.R.U.F.C. Gubb is a forward.

During the four times he played in the Varsity match, Oxford lost three times and won once. Gubb captained Oxford on the occasion they won in 1929. With the exception of his first match, when Cambridge appear to have won fairly comfortably by 30 points to 3, the other matches were all close.

When Gubb captained Oxford the side was victorious by 9 points to 0. In 1927 Oxford lost by 22 points to 14 and in 1928 by 14 points to 10.

A MAGNIFICENT STRUGGLE

The 1928 match was as exciting as any one could wish Cambridge, with three internationals in their three-quarter line, R. W. Smiedde, C. D. Anrold, and W. G. Morgan—the first two mentioned played for England and Morgan represented Wales—were strong favourites. In the first twenty minutes of the game, when they scored all their 14 points (if memory serves correct) it appeared that Oxford would be a badly routed side by the end of the day.

Oxford's strength lay in her forwards. Led by the Scottish international, J. M. Bannerman, they played a magnificent game and towards the close of the day made Cambridge supporters realize that it was just as much Oxford's game as Cambridge's. It was also in this game that J. A. Adamson, who was playing full back, dropped a fine goal.

T. W. Gubb was at University College.—N. C. D. News.

GOLF RECORD BY MISS BARTON

ENGLISH WOMAN IN AUSTRALIA

HANDICAP NOW REDUCED

Canberra, Sept. 12. Miss Pam Barton, of the Royal Mid-Surrey, had a phenomenal round of 71 here to-day, breaking the Royal Canberra course record by eight strokes. She played her best game since she arrived in Australia.

The previous Canberra record was set up only yesterday by Miss Jessie Anderson (Craigie Hill). Miss Barton's 71, which was four under par, enabled her to win the Federal Territory Championship with an aggregate of 161. She had a first-round of 80 yesterday. She also won all the scratch events which were played concurrently with the Championship. Her handicap has now been reduced from 2 to 1 by the Australian Women's Golf Union.

Miss Jessie Anderson was runner-up with 165 (79 and 76); and Mrs. J. B. Walker, the new Australian champion, third with 163 (82 and 81). Another member of the British Touring team, Miss Phyllis Wade (Ferndown), tied for fourth place with an aggregate of 170.

The British team were second at the end of the second round in the handicap competition for teams.

UNIMPRESSIVE APPEARANCE

FORM NO CRITERION OF CAPABILITIES

LOCAL COMBINED SIDE WINS BY A SEVEN SHOT MARGIN

(By "Sagax")

Without revealing any exceptional form, the combined Police R. C. and Civil Service C. C. lawn bowls rink, which met the Shanghai interporters yesterday, drew first blood against the visitors who were beaten by the local men by 22 shots to 15 in a match that was never, or very rarely, of a standard which can be characterised as anything but a good Club game.

The initial appearance in the Colony, on the Police green, of this year's Interport team from the North was certainly not impressive but the general standard reproduced was no criterion of the capabilities of the visitors and although beaten by a fairly comfortable margin the display yesterday was in no way disparaging to their reputations as bowlers representing the highest class obtaining in Shanghai.

It really took the visitors the entire 21 heads to settle down after their trip from the North but they should be able to give a much better account of themselves this afternoon in the first interport fixture of the series on the Club de Recreo green.

Owing to the uncertainty of the fixture there were not as many spectators present as would certainly have attended had it not been announced that the ship was not due until five o'clock yesterday.

NOT UP TO FORM

Practically all the visiting bowlers are well-known to local exponents of the game and it was obvious that yesterday's was nothing like their best form. Even Charlie Richards, the skip, was not able to gauge the green to the same degree of accuracy as when he was here two years ago and although he brought off some clever shots during the course of the match he was not the same deadly skip as when he led the Shanghai team which was beaten on the last two heads in the first interport match on the Craigiegowrie C. C. green two years ago.

However, the Shanghai skip's failure yesterday was not altogether due to his own indifferent form, although it was a contributory factor, but to a large extent to the inadequate support given him by J. W. Brierley, who is "renewing" an eight-year-old visit to the Colony. The 1927 lead for Shanghai failed to touch top form as No. 3 yesterday and unless he is backed by a good reputation the probabilities are that he will not be included to-day. It was rarely that he sent down a shot worthy of the class of bowls in which he was participating although it must readily be said that he did some good work on some heads.

LOPES MOST CONSISTENT

The inconsistency of the Shanghai team was not confined to the latter men as neither W. H. Train nor J. M. C. Lopes was up to interport standard. The former, as No. 2, is enjoying his first visit as a member of an official team, but he too failed to "find the green." However, he recovered from an indifferent start and towards the end gave a glimpse of some bright bowling.

Lopes was probably the most consistent of the visiting players and, remembering his form of two years ago, one can readily look to him to lead the Shanghai side to-day. He started with some well placed shots and then fell away but he also showed a slight improvement in the latter stages of the game.

As has been said the standard of yesterday's game cannot be taken seriously as the team did not arrive in Hongkong until 2.30 p.m. and the players were on the green ready for their opening engagement within an hour of the berthing of their ship. It can safely be said that once the visitors strike their form they can field a quartette which will be capable of retaining the honours which they won in Shanghai last year.

THE LOCAL PLAYERS

The combined Police and Civil Service rink was best served by W. McLeod, of the former club, who played lead against Lopes. For consistency the local player was the better of the pair and brought off some brilliant shots. He served his later men well and there were times when the Hongkong skip only required to ask for guards, or to draw additional shots.

S. E. Alderman, of the Civil Service C. C., occupied the No. 2 berth but he did not altogether excel himself. He sent down some very good shots, it is true, but taken all round his form was not up to his best standard. Like Train, he played a few good heads at the beginning but was much better during the closing heads when he and his Shanghai rival were engaged in a couple of exciting duels for possession of the lie.

Brawn featured some mediocre play with some very good deliveries but was no worse than the majority of (Continued on Page 9.)

Is Peggy Scriven Engaged?

PEGGY SCRIVEN

Copenhagen, Sept. 14. The Politiken states that Miss Peggy Scriven, the twenty-three-year-old British tennis star, and Mr. Ingerslev Nielsen, the Danish tennis player, are engaged to be married.

They first met in a tournament in which they played together in Helsingor, Sweden, some time ago, says the paper, and the partnership developed into a romance.

Miss Scriven was going to take part in a tournament in Copenhagen afterwards, but was prevented for private reasons.

In a few days Mr. Ingerslev Nielsen is going to Scotland, where he is taking part in a tournament near Edinburgh. His partner in mixed doubles will be Miss Scriven.

FATHER'S DENIAL

Her father told a Sunday Express representative last night:—

"There has been some talk of a Danish gentleman, but certainly she is not engaged to him."

COCHET'S THIRD VICTORY

WINS IN MANILA FROM J. GAVIA

IN STRAIGHT SETS

Manila, Oct. 4.
Juanito Gavia, younger brother of Leonardo, the Islands' No. 1 star, displayed surprising steadiness against Henri Cochet, veteran French star at the Rizal Memorial Tennis Stadium yesterday afternoon and put up an interesting contest against the visitor, despite the fact that he lost 6-3, 6-3. Juanito is ranked No. 6 among the Islands' ranking players.

The Mariano Servillon-Rodrigo Diaz doubles team went down to defeat at the hands of Cochet and Mauricio Zamora in two straight sets, following the singles tilt. The scores were 6-1, 6-3. The doubles match was featured by the brilliant playing of Mauricio Zamora who is considered an outstanding candidate for the Philippine Davis Cup team which may be sent to Europe next year. Zamora, who for several years ranked at the top in the doubles list, bore the brunt of play yesterday and at times played a lone hand against the Servillon-Diaz combination.

Youthful Juanito Gavia played as steady tennis against Cochet as any of the other local players who have played the famed French star. Cochet, suffering from sore back muscles, did not exert himself over much against the local but the spectators were impressed by young Gavia's style of play. Asked what he thought of Juanito's playing, Cochet declared that he was too young a player to pass judgment on and indicated that his style and quality of play may change as he grows older.

Cochet favours the plan of the Philippine Islands Lawn Tennis Association to send a team to Europe to take part in the Davis Cup series next year. He declared that regardless of whether or not the Philippines take part in the Davis Cup series, Leonardo Gavia should be sent abroad to gain experience.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION

Difficult Conditions Met At Kowloon

Below are the leading scores in a Spoon and Practice Shoot fired on the army range at Kowloon yesterday under King's (1st Stage) conditions. Seven shots and one sighting shot were fired at 200, 500 and 600 yards.

The conditions obtaining were by far the most difficult that the Association has yet experienced, the light constantly varying and the wind changing considerably in direction and force. The result of these disadvantages was at once apparent in lower individual scores all round but on the other hand, the average numbers of points obtained were easily the highest yet recorded in any of the Association's shoots.

The winners of spoons cannot yet be given as the committee are still working out the handicaps but it is hoped that in the case of those who have qualified by firing through the complete stages of the three separate shoots, their handicaps will be determined by the end of the present week.

the players figuring in the fixture. Shepherd started poorly and it was only through far improvement in his play during the second half of the game that the local players were able to win. He was responsible for some clever bowling on the later heads and on the thirteenth he gave Hongkong a count of four by dislodging a Shanghai backwood after negotiating a difficult point.

HOW GAME WENT

The Shanghai players opened with a single and after scoring a two conceded their first point to the Colony players on the third head. With the score reading 4-1 in favour of the visitors the local side staged a recovery and registered a three to catch up on their opponents. McLeod and Alderman gave the combined local side a good start on this head when the former lay two and the latter drew a third. Brown came up for another shot but Richards managed to save one.

Thereafter until the tenth head the scoring was on the low side and when the eleventh was commenced Shanghai were one down. On the tenth Brierley had knocked the jack to one of Brown's woods and Richards, in an attempt to dislodge, promoted an opposition wood for a count of two to the local side, making the score 8-7. Shanghai's response was a three to take the lead again and then a single made the score 11-8 for the visitors. The twelfth head should have gone to the Hongkong players, but an error of judgment on Shepherd's part allowed the visitors a single.

Brown twice exonerated the local players from a difficult position, first by dislodging a Shanghai wood through a narrow point and then, after Brierley had replaced the first counter by drawing first shot with a heavy delivery which wicked off two woods before coming to rest. However, Shepherd touched up Brierley's wood for the counter.

HONGKONG'S BIG SCORE

Shepherd amply made up for his error on the next head when Brown had carried the jack to a cluster of back woods belonging to Hongkong but with the score 11-8 for the visitors. The Shanghai team among them, however, it was this single wood which lay the shot when Shepherd went to deliver his first. Through a narrow passage he skillfully drove Shanghai's wood into the ditch and Hongkong lay four or five.

Richards attempted to break up the head or carry the jack into the ditch, but although he scattered the surrounding woods there was no Shanghai timber in the near vicinity and Hongkong chalked up four, the biggest count of the match.

Shepherd continued the good work on the next head and by dislodging a Shanghai counter scored two for his side. The board now showed Hongkong leading by fourteen shots to eleven.

The Hongkong men, as a rink, were definitely playing the better bowls and registered another two on the 15th head.

The 16th head was probably the poorest of the match and, on a long lead, no less than five woods were sent into the ditch, although one was a touch. After Shanghai had scored a single the score was 18-13, Hongkong having had a two on the 17th head.

Another two was followed for Hongkong and on the 20th head the Police-Civil Service rink led by 22-13. Shanghai ended up with a two on the last head.

SHANGHAI'S PROBABLE RINK

Hongkong Man's Feat: The "Beautiful Fish"

Nanking, Oct. 7.
Displaying speed, such as has never been seen in a local pool, Chan Chan-hing, member of the Hongkong aquatic team to the National Athletic Meeting, created a new National record in the 50 metre free style event of 28.3 sec. in an exhibition contest held yesterday at the Central Swimming Pool.

Miss Yeung Sau-king, popularly known as the "beautiful fish," and other girl swimmers of the Hongkong team also gave an exhibition of the various fancy strokes, drawing loud plaudits from the spectators who packed the grand stand to capacity.

All proceeds are to go towards the flood relief fund. The Hongkong swimmers returned to Shanghai last night by the midnight train.

SERIAL STORY

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XLVII

It was a long time before Betty sat up on the side of the bed. One of her small gilt slippers had been kicked off and lay on the floor beside her. Her hair fell in a dishevelled mass and her cheeks were swollen and red. She put one hand up and wiped away the tears that smarted in her eyes. Then she picked up the letter.

Mrs. Curtis had written it. The letter began affectionately, "My darling daughter," and was devoted principally to bits of news about people in Lancaster. Most of them were Mrs. Curtis' friends instead of Betty's. The Thorntons were talking of buying a new car. Emma Haynes had gone to Charleston for the winter. Mrs. Wilford had died and sent her love to Betty. The first two pages of the letter were devoted to things like that and then there was the paragraph that, seeing it a second time, stabbed at Betty's heart. Just as it had the first.

"I clipped something from the morning paper I thought would interest you. You and Van used to be such good friends. I hope she's a nice girl and they'll be happy."

The clipping was an announcement of the marriage of Miss Mary Katherine Gibbs of Boston and Allen Bannister II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Allen Bannister of Lancaster. The wedding had taken place in Boston the week before and the young couple had departed immediately for Bermuda.

Every word of the formal phrasing was stamped indelibly on Betty's heart. She read it through again and again and then, sobbing, fell back on the bed. "I don't care!" she moaned. "I don't care what happens now! Oh, Van how could you? How could you?"

There was no answer. No answer of any sort until there was a knock at the door and a startled maid announced, amid apologies, that she had mistaken the room for another. Betty shut the door on her. When the telephone rang a little later she took up and saw that she was sorry but she could not keep the engagement. Yes, a sudden headache. It was simply raging. No, there was nothing to be done. She would be all right only she couldn't see anyone. Not to-night.

The waiter bowed with a solicitous air. "Was everything satisfactory?" "Everything was all right," Rolf assured him. "Now we'll like two raspberry ices and two coffees. Make mine a large one."

"Yes, sir," the waiter bowed and disappeared. "It's great sitting here and talking to you like this," he said. "Makes me forget a lot of things I don't like to think about. I know I've been a fool, Janet. All sorts of a fool! To think I let a girl like you get away from me!" The girl's eyes met his and then lowered quickly. He had said things like that throughout the dinner. Flattering things. The sort of things every girl likes to hear. But he hadn't said that he cared for her in the old way. He hadn't asked if she could give him another chance to prove he loved her.

"You were telling me about the new job," she reminded him. "What is there you don't like about it?" He shrugged. "Oh, I don't know. It's small town stuff, that's all. They don't know how to go after the big money. This fellow, Jackie, has been running things for about 15 years and won't listen to anyone else. Got a lot of old-fashioned ideas. Believe me, I told them a thing or two when I left the Atlas office. I told Jim McPhail exactly what I thought of his dumb advertising agency. Say, I said plenty!"

Janet looked at him with troubled eyes. "But, Rolf, wasn't that foolish? You might want a recommendation some time?" "Not from him! I'll get all the recommendations I want and they won't be from small town nickel-grabbers like Jim McPhail. I'm going to get out of this town anyhow. It's too slow."

"Listen, Janet," he went on. "I got my hat all around here. It wasn't my fault. You know—well, about Betty's necklace. I wasn't going to take the damned thing. Just borrowed it for a few days. Betty didn't have any cause to throw a fit the way she did but now that it's happened I'm glad of it. It was running around with her high-toned society crowd that got me in debt."

"You mean you have other debts?" "A few, he admitted casually. "Couple hundred or so. But those birds can wait for it. They've got plenty of dough anyhow. The thing I hated about that necklace business was dragging you into it. Betty only did it because she was jealous of you."

"Jealous?" "Sure. Didn't you know that? Remember the row she started that night last summer when she came to her mother's and found you and me talking together? I guess it all started because I told her once I thought you were good looking. Oh, Betty's a jealous little devil all right."

The waiter set the dessert before them and poured the coffee. Rolf waited until he had gone. Then he leaned forward and said, "I know they couldn't do anything to you about the necklace. You don't hold that against me, do you Janet?"

"No, I don't," he said. "You're the kind to stand by a fellow when he's down. Look at me, Janet, I've got something to ask you. Would you?" he hesitated—"would you be willing to be engaged to me again?" There it was—the thing she had been waiting to hear. He had said it.

Rolf was asking her to marry him. Somehow the lights and the flowers and the shimmering linen swam into a misty haze before the girl. It was the moment she had prayed for, dreamed of. He hadn't said it poetically or romantically. Just "Would you be willing to be engaged to me again?" What did that matter? Rolf was waiting for her answer.

But he wasn't waiting. He had gone on, taking it for granted that her answer would be "Yes." "Well, go away from here," Rolf told her. "To Chicago or one of the other big towns. I can get another job all right. We'll make a new start together."

"But Rolf," Janet's voice was soft and low-toned. "We can't—I mean it wouldn't be right. You're still Betty's husband."

"For two weeks more. After that—say, baby, we'll show the world! You and I together!" He went on enthusiastically about the things they would do. In Chicago he'd get a job with one of the big advertising agencies. A place where they appreciated a fellow. They'd have a swell apartment. Janet was to have everything in the world she wanted.

"Of course just at first," he said. "I suppose you could get a job, too. But I'm going to be making big money in a year or so. You won't need to work long. All I want is the chance and a little encouragement. You know, Janet, I think you're prettier than Betty. That blue dress make your eyes look blue. They're gray really, aren't they? You see, I haven't forgotten." Listen, honey, let's get out of this place—"

Janet turned to rise and caught a glimpse of her ankle. There was a tiny unner in the new chiffon hose she was wearing. She excused herself and went to the dressing room. There was no maid to assist in repairing the hose but soap applied to the runner would keep it from spreading. Janet put her foot on a chair and carefully rubbed the soap in. She must not smear it or pull the threads.

The door of the room opened and she glanced up quickly. A small girl wearing a short fur coat over a velvet dress entered the room. She had very dark eyes and dark hair showing beneath her bright red turban. Janet had seen her in the restaurant sitting at a table with two men and another girl. She was rather pretty and had an air of style though the fur coat and red turban were obviously cheap.

The other girl seemed to hesitate and then came forward. She crossed the room until she was directly in front of Janet, put both hands on her hips and said: "I guess you don't remember me, do you? Well, I know you all right and there's something I've got to say to you." (To Be Continued).

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Long ago, when the world was young, Messer Marco Polo of Italy set out to find what he could find in the way of strange sights and strange things. To-day, the world is a little older and not quite so green. Randolph Scott, who plays opposite Helen Gahagan in RKO-Radio's "She," finds what Marco Polo missed. The Polo let his wanderings take him as far as what then was known as Tartary, fell abruptly in love with a Chinese girl and came back to a long interlude of rice cakes and kisses. Had he kept on going, he would have come to Muscovy, and it is quite possible he would have found the Kingdom of Kor, ruled over by the flame of eternal life. For it is in Muscovy that Randolph Scott finds the Kingdom of Kor in the picture, of course and almost yields to the impulse to walk through the flame of eternal life and so rejuvenate himself indefinitely. It all happens in RKO Radio's dramatic production of the Haggard story which millions have read with gasps of amazement. "She" is a picture wherein beautiful Helen Gahagan, whose charm has beguiled Broadway in many stage successes, plays the Empress of Kor. It is one of the most spectacular pictures ever to come to the screen, and tells the strangest love story ever told. This photoplay is a Merian C. Cooper production and was co-directed by Irving Pichel and L. C. Holden. It is due at the King's on Saturday.

"Orchids To You"

Some of the most moving dramatic situations ever seen on the motion picture screen, along with sparkling dialogue and plenty of natural comedy are combined to make "Orchids To You," which starts its engagement on Sunday at the Alhambra one of the most powerful and unusual romantic dramas, with a theme completely out of the beaten track. John Boles, filmworld's most popular singing star, plays the role of a clever society lawyer. Boles' remarkable talents tend to make Fox Film's "Orchids To You" one of the season's outstanding films. Joan Muir has the part of a beautiful lady florist, whose trade secrets could break a thousand hearts, while Charles Butterworth, the favourite "dead-pan" comedian of laughs in "Orchids To You" is a wealthy idler. Ruthless Stevens, Harvey Stevens and Arthur Lake have featured roles in "Orchids To You" which was produced by Robert T. Kane and directed by William A. Seiter.

"The Crusades"

Colossal as Cecil B. DeMille's concept in script, just as colossal is his screen masterpiece, "The Crusades" comes to the Queen's Theatre to-day to enthrall audiences. Its spellbinding warmth, its strength of muscle and steel, its zeal of minds and men hold one enthralled as one of the world's most glorious pageants re-lives in ageless romance. Aside from pomp and majesty, glitter and gallop a love clash shines with warmth and fervour. Beatrice Loring Young and two-listed tomcatous Henry Wilcoxon make of love a poet's dream in flesh and blood. Ian Keith, astute Oriental potentate, who gallantly relinquishes Miss Young his captive to Richard C. Aubrey Smith, religious hermit, instigator of the Crusades. Joseph Schildkraut, double dealer against Richard. Alan Hale, jester and troubadour. George Barbier, King of Navarre. Montagu Love, Richard's blacksmith, Lumsden Hare, Earl of Leicester. William Farnum, Hobart Bosworth. Mischa Lane, two-listed tomcatous roles conceived in the screen play by Harold Lamb, Waldemar Young and Dudley Nichols. Life-like portraits with finished acting in each.

"Paris in Spring"

Springtime is love time in the gayest of world capitals, as audiences will soon discover when Paramount's "Paris in Spring" comes to-day to the Star Theatre. Mary Ellis and Tullio Carminati head the cast of this film, a medley of laughter and songs woven about a romantic story. They are two people who love each other very deeply, but who just won't admit it. Carminati, in a fit of desperation, threatens to commit suicide, even goes to the Eiffel Tower to carry out his threat, and meets there Ida Lupino, a lovely girl in a similar plight. Rather than commit suicide, they decide to combine forces and make their respective sweethearts furiously jealous. The plan works so well that Miss Ellis and Ralph Blakeley, Miss Lupino's sweetheart, get together in self-protection. Police pursue Carminati who is charged with abducting Miss Lupino, but he and the girl flee to her grandmother's ancestral castle on the outskirts of Paris. There is much confusion and misunderstanding. The wrong couples are supposed to be married to each other, and a hilarious mix-up finally reaches its climax when Miss Ellis and Carminati are happily rejoined, and Miss Lupino and Blakeley decide that they will be married.

"The Informer"

In making "The Informer" for RKO-Radio, Director John Ford conducted an experiment which might have resulted disastrously but which has proved to be startlingly effective. Rolf was asking her to marry him. Somehow the lights and the flowers and the shimmering linen swam into a misty haze before the girl. It was the moment she had prayed for, dreamed of. He hadn't said it poetically or romantically. Just "Would you be willing to be engaged to me again?" What did that matter? Rolf was waiting for her answer.

The entire picture, featuring Victor McLaglen, Heather Angel, Preston Foster and Margot Graham, was photographed in fog. Proceeding against the advice of his assistants and cameramen, who felt that the experiment would give the picture a drab atmosphere or one of low visibility, Ford has secured a remarkably clear piece of photography. Through skilful use of high-lighting, all the scenes of the picture are made to stand out with a subdued brilliance that marks perhaps the most effective photographic tour de force ever achieved. However, the medium of presentation is not permitted to overshadow the story, for as the play unfolds, the beauty of the photography is forgotten and attention is focussed upon the drama. The film is now at the King's Theatre.

"Car 99"

The heroic officers of the law of Karl Detzer's popular Saturday Evening Post short stories of the Michigan State Police are brought to the screen in Paramount's "Car 99" which is scheduled to be the next change at the Queen's Theatre. Fred MacMurray, Sir Guy Standing, Alan Sheridan and William Frawley head the cast. The plot of "Car 99" is based on four stories, "Hug and Cry," "A Still Small Voice," "One Good Turn" and "He Also Serves." Written by Detzer from actual incidents in the experience of this famous motorized anti-crime force. "Car 99" is the story of a trooper who remains devoted to the force even after he has been discharged for a minor infraction. Torn between the love of a woman and a sense of duty, he craves through when he rounds up the State's most dangerous criminal gang single handed. Sir Guy Standing, eminent English actor, recently seen in Paramount's "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," plays one of the leading roles in the picture.

"Ginger"

A bundle of sure-fire, top-notch comedy entertainment begins an engagement to-day at the Alhambra. The picture, "Ginger," which boasts the talent of little nine-year-old Jane Withers, an expert comedienne who is remembered for her part as the little meane in "Bright Eyes" kept the audience agog every minute of its playing time and the applause that followed it, gave proof of this reviewer's sentiment. "Ginger" boasts the world's champion small boy and boy heavies of the screen—Jane Withers and Jackie Searle. There is a swell clash, with a world of comedy, when these youngsters got together, although they are not heavens in this picture. You will enjoy the manner in which the talented little orphan Jane, denied the love and care of a mother and father, herself looks after O. P. Heggie, gives him lectures, loves him, defends him, and keeps house for him. When Jane is taken into the Park Avenue home of the pampered Jackie Searle, trouble and fun are certain to follow and they do. O. P. Heggie has always stood for a splendid performance and he lives right up to his name as Jane's foster-uncle, a broken-down Shakespearean actor. As the parents of Jackie Searle, Kathrine Alexander and Walter King provide an unusual romance and it is a sure bet that both will shortly achieve important screen positions. So! M. Wurtzel produced this new screen hit, which was directed by Lewis Seiler.

tion that her inclusion must wait upon her introduction to the terms of reference. This stand is probably due to Switzerland's contiguity to Italy and her fears of the consequences of economic sanctions.—Reuter.

DISAGREEMENT

Geneva, 6.30 p.m. After Dr. Edouard Benes, President of the League Assembly, recalled that the League Council had found that Italy had embarked upon a war, contrary to Article XVI of the Covenant, the Assembly to-night formally decided to place the matter upon its agenda, thus allowing immediate discussion of the dispute.

In order to dissipate all misunderstandings, Dr. Benes stated that the Bureau of the Assembly had decided that the Council should still deal with the question. Moreover, the Assembly does not supersede the Council and the Assembly will not be working under the provisions of Article XV, he explained.

Delegates in the Assembly, Dr. Benes went on, can voice their views in the matter; and the Council proposal that the Assembly should participate in the work of the co-ordinating committee was brought to the notice of delegates.

AUSTRIAN STAND

Immediately Dr. Benes ceased to speak, the Austrian delegate said his Government was not in a position to associate itself with decisions of the members of the Council. While desiring to reaffirm his good faith in and attachment to the League principles, Italy was a country which, in desperate conditions, contributed to the safety and integrity of Austria. Italy had their lively sympathies, and Austria could not go back upon her friendship. Austrian gratitude was not towards the League Covenant.

SANCTIONS OPPOSED

On behalf of the Hungarian Government, a spokesman asserted that they too were unable to associate themselves with the decision to apply sanctions.

It was with painful feeling that they had learned of the proposals to apply sanctions against a country with which they had always had such friendly relations.

There were no further speakers, and Dr. Benes adjourned the Assembly until to-morrow, when Baron Aloisi speaks. Thereafter, other delegates will be free to express their views on the Council's decision regarding sanctions.—Reuter.

foreign exchange, making purchases in Germany, Austria and Hungary difficult; secondly, to the League's ability to cut off key war products, including petroleum and nickel.

League members have little hope of German co-operation although it is indicated that Austro-Hungarian declarations are not as important as they sound.—United Press.

PEACE PROSPECT

London, Oct. 9. The reiteration by a Rome spokesman of Italy's willingness to talk peace is regarded as significant in view of the impending League penalties.—United Press.

NEW SERIAL

"Donna Of The Big Top"

A new serial, entitled "Donna of the Big Top," will begin in Saturday's issue of the Telegraph. Written by Beulah Poynter, it presents one of the most absorbing stories about circus life, and is full of colour. There is also a tempestuous romance between two young stars who played for high stakes.

Hauptmann's counsel, Mr. Walter Fisher, has announced that he will now appeal to the Supreme Court.—Reuter.

A United Press message states that Hauptmann's execution will take place between four and eight weeks after the dismissal of the appeal, unless he appeals to the Supreme Court and the latter grants a review.

TAKE TWENTY-FOUR SEATS

Kaunas, Oct. 9. It is officially announced that as a result of the Memel elections, the German Party have obtained twenty-four seats and the Lithuanians only five.

The position of Memelanders will remain constitutionally unchanged as the result of the election, as the German Party is still unable to obtain the requisite quorum in the Diet, as decreed by the Lithuanian Governor, who will continue to direct the affairs of the Independent Diet.—Reuter Special.

BRITAIN'S FAR EAST POLICY

brutal sentiments I am expressing. We should leave the thing alone when we get into a position where we say 'we must do something.' It would be better to say nothing at all than that."

Referring to a letter in the Times by the Bishop of Hongkong advocating the sending to the Far East of a sort of superman, apparently modelled on the personality of Mr. Anthony Eden, and equally friendly to both China and Japan, or of much greater calibre than the Ambassadors in Nanking and Tokyo, to bring a new atmosphere into the Far East, Sir Francis said a more ridiculous suggestion could not be imagined.

PRUDENCE NEEDED

"The only sensible policy for Britain in the Far East," declared Sir Francis, "is one of extreme prudence. Russian and Japanese affairs have not been much mentioned lately, indicating that the relationships of those countries remain in a state of unstable equilibrium. While M. Litvinoff expresses laudable sentiments, the Soviets spend considerable revenue financing sedition in other countries. The Japanese always have an excuse if they want to make trouble with Russia, namely propaganda."

"Many people realise that we are not in a position to contend against Japan in the Far East. They advocate a policy of close co-operation with America, which should not be ostensibly or really anti-Japanese, but which will in effect keep Japan in check. I am sceptical of such an idea. I cannot see any sign that the Americans would enter into an armed conflict with Japan, or that they would be at all likely to help us if we entered into one; nor do I see why they should."—Reuter.
